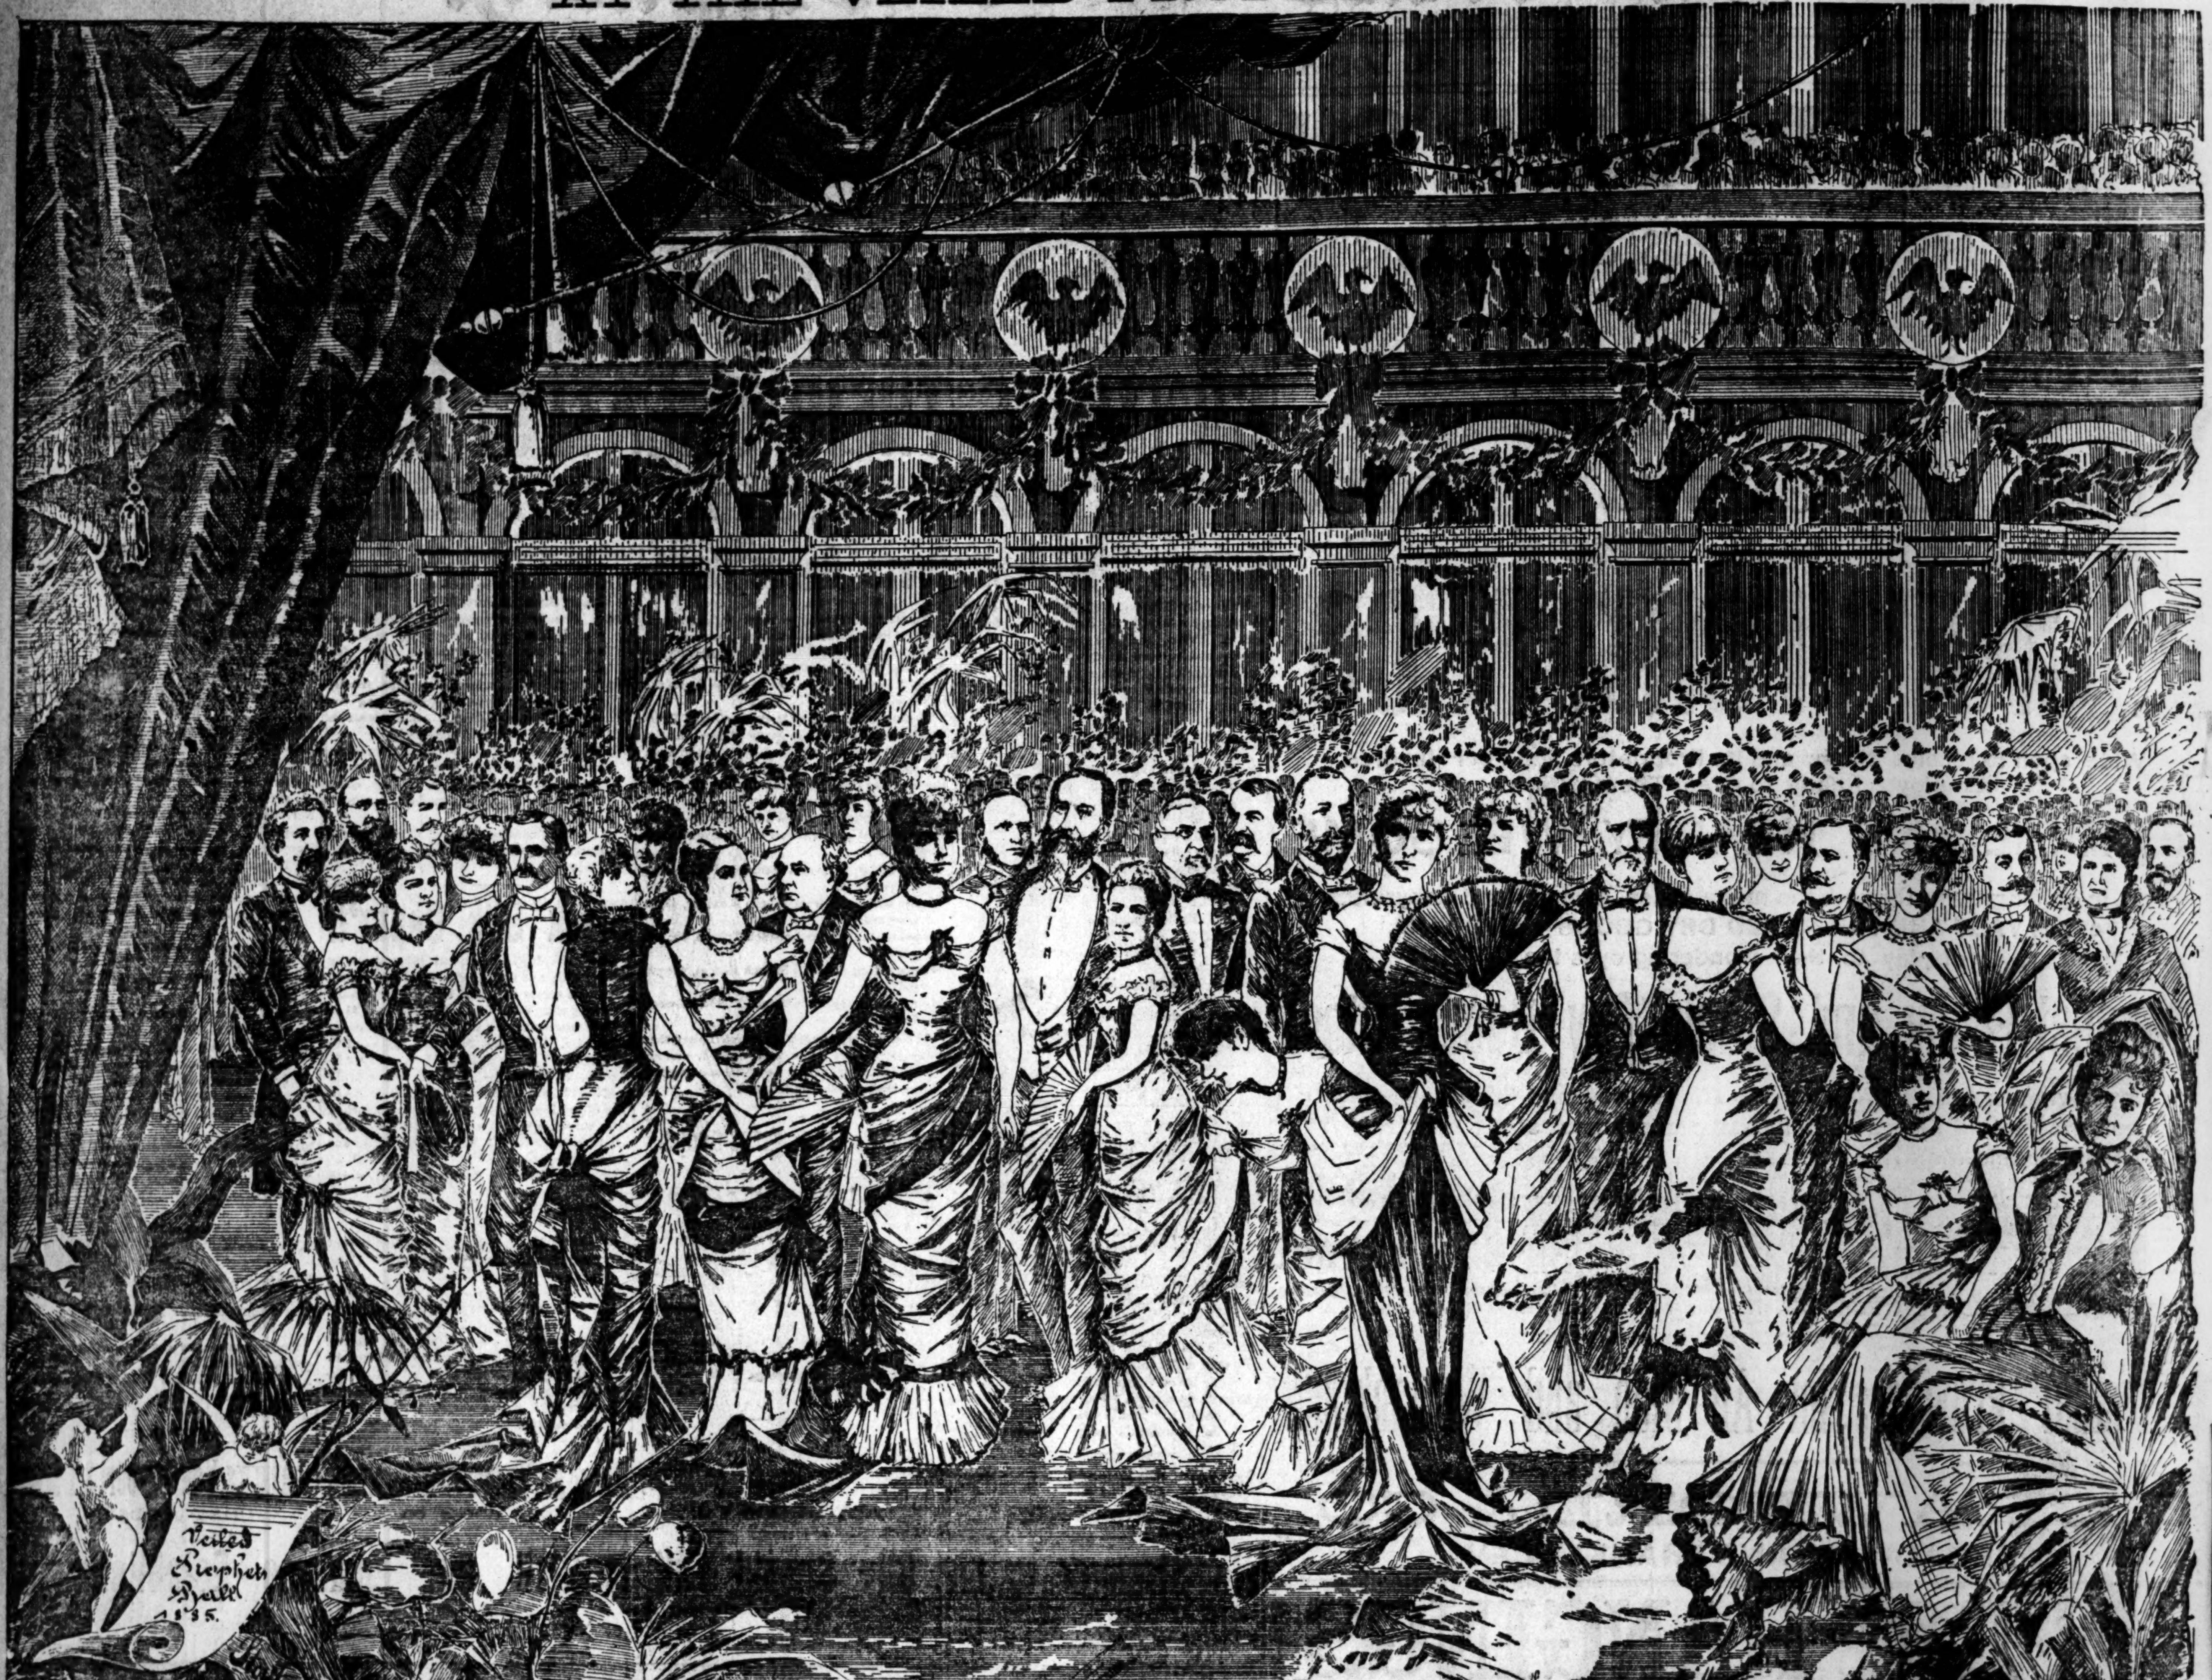
AT THE VEILED PROPHETS' BALL.



Veiled Prophets Ball 1885.

To the great public, the public that does not dance, and the public that does not go in society, the Veiled Prophet ball is a mystery. Of the thousands who throng the streets and crowd the windows on the night of the pageant not five per cent have ever seen the interior of the great Chamber of Commerce Hall as prepared for the reception of the Prophet. For the edification of these thousands and the other thousands who aspire to society honours, the POST-DISPATCH this evening unveils an imaginary scene at the festival of the Prophet. It shows a section of the Merchants' Exchange Hall as it appeared last evening during the festivities, a group of ladies well known in society circles and of gentlemen prominent in business affairs and all public works. The portraits will be readily recognized by those who know the subjects. For the benefit of those who do not the roster is here given:

Leopold Methudy (on the extreme left) is a director of the St. Louis Exposition. James Brookmire is a prominent wholesale grocer. Geo. W. Allen is a son of the late Thos. Allen and president of the Council. Mayor D. R. Francis is at the head of the D. R. Francis Commission Company. W. A. Hargadine is a heavy dealer in dry goods. E. O. Stanard is an ex-Lieutenant Governer and a prominent miller. Joseph Specht is president of the Famous Shoe and Clothing Company. Chas. P. Chouteau is a heavy stockholder in various enterprises and one of the richest men in St. Louis. J. C. Ewald is a well-known grain merchant and speculator. Chas. Green is president of the Fair Association and the People's Railway. R. P. Tansey is manager of the St. Louis Transfer Company. Ellis Wainwright is a wealthy brewer and a director in both the Exposition and Fair Associations. F. W. Humphrey is a retail dealer in clothing. Frank Galennie is a Southern gentleman and a dealer in provisions. Of the ladies, Mrs. W. W. Garrison, the first figure on the left, was well known in society as Miss May Beard. Miss Ann Carter Wickham is one of the belles of society. Miss Ida Beard, a sister of Mrs. W. W. Garrison, is a debutante of last season. Mrs. Jos. Carr is a daughter of Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison and wife of the official Caller of the Exchange. Mrs. Lucy V. Semple Ames is the leader of one of the most exclusive sets in society. Miss Lucy Wickham is one of the Imperial set. Miss May Blossom is a daughter of H. M. Blossom, the insurance agent. Mrs. Charles Greeley is one of the most beautiful women in St. Louis society. Miss Nellie Maxon is the eldest daughter of John H. Maxon of the Lindell Railway. Miss Georgie Anderson is considered one of the most beautiful girls in St. Louis, and one of the most popular. She is a sister of Mrs. Ed Mallinkrodt. Mrs. Ellis Wainwright is ranked among the most beautiful matrons in exclusive St. Louis society. Mrs. Dwight Tredway is a daughter of Carlos Greeley. Mrs. Henry Lucas was Miss Espenchied and is a sister of Mrs. Henry Overstolz. Mrs. Alf Bouvier, as Josie McKellops, was formerly a St. Louis belle. Mrs. Henry Siegrist, nee Minnie Lawrence, is probably better known to the general public on account of her beauty than any other St. Louis lady. Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison is a recognized leader in all society and charitable affairs. Miss Mary Bissell is a daughter of D. R. Bissell. Miss Mimi Morrison is the third daughter of Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison and a debutante of last season. The description of these figures begins on the left.

AN ARABIAN NIGHT.

The Veiled Prophet's Eighth Visit to St. Louis.

A Dazzling Pageant Witnessed By Over 300,000 People.

Scenes and Incidents Along the Route of the Procession.

What the Prophet Brought to Us and How It Was Received—The Crowds, the March, the Ball and the Return Home—Effect of the Car Strike—Gratifying Absence of Accidents and Casualties.

The stained sidewalks, the forest of glass globes and the red eyes of many a morning straggler were the only evidences of the Veiled Prophet's visitation when the sun split the blue cover and threw its light over the city this morning. There was little in these to tell of the pageant of the night before, or of the glory that attended it; there was nothing in them to reveal the fact that his Majesty the Veiled Prophet was welcomed by a vaster throng than ever greeted his coming before. The pageant had passed away like a dream, and the sleepy toilers who scudded along in the face of a brisk breeze felt as if they had been awakened while yet the influence of the vision was on them.

The evening was all that could have been wished in the way of clearness, and although the temperature was cold, yet it was not sufficiently so to furnish reasonable ground for complaint. With a warm wrap everybody was comfortable, and a few hours' exposure amounted to nothing. Thus the one great desirability was secured. The sudden and unexpected street car strike was a source of discomfort to a great many who were compelled to trudge miles to and from their homes, but it did not appear to decrease the number of spectators as judged by the number in previous years. This was contrary to all expectation, for, when the announcement of the strike was made those who were interested in having a big crowd down town became very much alarmed, fearing that the Veiled Prophet would show to a half house only, so to speak. Their delight in seeing an even greater number of people on the streets than were ever noticed before was naturally great. Everybody agreed in saying that the streets were never so crowded as when the Prophets moved through them last night. The figures gathered at depots and hotels show that the number of strangers in the city surpassed any previous number on a similar occasion, and with these it seemed as if the whole population of the city turned out to greet the Prophet.

As for the pageant itself words only of the most unbounded praise can be said. The theme was a beautiful one and had the merit of being familiar to everybody, and the manner in which it was carried out was perfect. The preparations were all that were needed to be. The illuminations filled the principal streets with a light that was unapproachable in its splendor and dazzling in its brilliancy. A glance down the magnificently-jeweled arcade of lights on Broadway and Fourth streets was sufficient to arouse enthusiasm in even the most unemotional breast, and when to this sight were added the gorgeous colors of the floats, the red fire and oriental draperies, the charm of color and the influence of beauty were irresistible. From the moment the procession left the den on Twelfth and Chestnut streets all was excitement. The usual of curious ones pressed about the den and witnessed the embarkation of the prophets and the formation of the floats. The festive hoodlum and the jocular small boy, unimpressed with the sight, poked fun at the Prophets and made the floats objects of ridicule. It is estimated that over 5,000 people were gathered at the corner of Twelfth and Pine streets. The discharge of rockets signalized the start, and the pageant moved up Pine street between solid walls of humanity. Every point of vantage was filled with spectators and the rude stands that had been erected between the houses were black with people. The crowd was no less dense on Nineteenth street and Washington avenue than on Pine, and it was especially heavy at the "turn." The St. Louis Club House and the many reviewing stands on Washington avenue, the Lindell Hotel and the big six-story buildings between Fourth and Tenth streets seemed to be bursting with humanity. On the sidewalks women and children were pressed so tightly that they frequently feared they would not escape with their lives. The turn into Fourth street was a magnificent thing. The street was jammed with people and from every window peered a dozen or more heads. This was the case on Broadway as well. The floats never moved so well, the newly reconstructed streets being so strongly in their favor that scarcely a hitch was noticed. This was particularly gratifying, since the delays noticed in previous pageants, caused by the lurches of the floats in the unpaved streets, the consequent breaking of axles and long halts were entirely avoided. A slight halt at Chestnut street where an arch was thought to be too low, and a little difficulty at St. Charles street on the way to the Merchants' Exchange along Third, were all that were noticed. The procession passed off in the quickest time on record, leaving an early hour for the beginning of the ball and plenty of time for those who had to walk to get home before midnight.

The usual street events consequent upon the presence of a large crowd were noticed, but the activity of the police prevented the occurrence of anything serious. Still, the absence of street cars from the principal lines caused a great deal of of discomfort and made the task of getting home a very serious one to many. The few lines upon which cars were operating were sought by thousands and the cars were packed like plethoric Christmas stockings. Enterprising teamsters turned many an honest quarter by helping the people to go to their homes, and it seemed as if every express wagon in the city had been pressed into service for this purpose. They were all well patronized and the strike of the street car men was, no doubt, looked upon as a boon by the owners of these vehicles. The hacks and cabmen were kept on the go constantly and prices equal almost to the "rig" were paid to many of them for transporting loads of dancers to and from the ball.

The ball was really the great event of the evening. There had been over 7,000 invitations issued, and fully seven-eighths of the invited attended. The costumes were ravishing, and, many said, so conspicuously elegant that the ball will serve as a criterion for the measure and estimate of many occasions of the kind yet to come. It was a brilliant scene that was witnessed by the hundreds of people in the gallery when the Prophets entered the beautifully decorated chamber and opened the ball. The rows of beautifully dressed women around the hall and the moving mass of beauty and fashion on the floor were a rare sight to look upon. The music was delightful, the gathering a splendidly representative one and the evening perfect. As a consequence the ball passed off delightfully, and it was not until midnight that the assemblage began to dissipate. From that time until 2 o'clock, or shortly after, streams of people poured from the building and the banging of carriage doors, the gathering up of silks and laces and the rattling of the vehicles homeward closed a night of spendor rarely experienced by the people of the Prophet's favorite city.

The Pageant.

The eighth annual visit of the Veiled Prophet has come and gone, leaving only a bright memory of his glories and the superb sights he prepared for his favorite city. The subject of his illustrations was well chosen, and afforded ample scope for the display of his invention and skill as an entertainer, the tableaux being marvels of magnificence and beauty. The rich costumes and hangings, sparkling with gold, silver and precious stones, revealed the splendors of the court of the Sultan and the marvels which his bride, the beautiful Scheherazade, narrated to him during the thousand and one nights. It is little wonder, when the rich pictures of last night are taken into consideration, that the Sultan concluded to forego his usual pleasure of cutting off a maiden's head and concluded to wait until her stories were completed, and finally concluded that the girl who could be so entertaining was too fine a treasure to be parted from at all and was worthy of the highest honor and favor at his hands. The beauties which entertained the Sultan in story were given to the thousands of citizens and strangers in St. Louis in pictures grandly conceived and gorgeously embellished. The streets were ablaze with myriads of lights, and themselves wonders of brilliancy and beauty and by 7 o'clock were crowded with sightseers. Throngs came from every direction and in every way, by the few street cars which were running, on wagons, in carriages and on foot until the thoroughfares presented the appearance of seas of human faces which surged and swayed like ocean billows with every passing emotion. By 8 o'clock the streets on the line of procession were packed and the side streets were well-filled branches within blocks of the route.

It was 8:20 o'clock when a dazzling shower of lights shot into the air from the center of Twelfth street and was followed by the report of a cannon fire cracker, the signal for the start. The floats had already been drawn up in line and the torch bearers took their places, the leaders of the horses started ahead, and the vast panorama was launched forth on its mission of delight to the waiting thousands.

THE FLOATS.

The first picture was that of the King of the Jinns bearing the Veiled Prophet, and was full of effectiveness. A huge giant, with stern countenance and muscular outstretched arms, stretched his huge length along a bank of clouds, moving by supernatural power, the willing bearer of the Veiled Prophet, who was perched in pontifical splendor on his back.

In the second float the Fairy of Poetry and Romance illustrated by an Arabian fairy of charming mein, dress, and figure was throned in the midst of huge palm trees forming a coach to which two giraffes were harnessed. Willing slaves accompanied the powerful wielder of the magic wand.

The third float represented a scene from the Orient of to-day. The ruins of a palace, or temple, were revealed, before which was seated a story-teller narrating to wondering listeners the past grandeurs of Araby the blest, of which the ruins constituted a fitting monument.

The fourth float illustrated beautifully the genie and the lady showing the infidelity and fickleness of womankind which reconciled the Persian king to his fate and put him in the notion of having a new bride every day to assure faithfulness to himself. The king and his companion are watching the bride of the sleeping genie gloating over her conquest of hearts and purses.

The Three Ladies of Bagdad, the theme of the fifth float, was admirably treated. The three ladies are entertaining the guests in a beautiful moresque apartment with wonderful stories. The tableau showed the three charming maidens, the Caliph Haroun Alraschid, his grand vizier and his executioner, the porter and three one-eyed calenders at the gate.

A scene which appealed powerfully the man of the nineteenth century and which proves that the nature of man, and especially of barbers, is the same the world over, made up the sixth float. A garrulous barber, with an enormous razor, had a customer on the rack, the pathetic situation of the latter being intensified by the fact that he had an engagement with his lady-love for a certain hour, which is rapidly approaching.

The opening of the brass urn caught in the sea by a poor fisherman and the freeing of the genie imprisoned therein was the subject realistically portrayed in the seventh float. The monster was pictured in the act of reaching out to capture his frightened deliverer.

The gallant Noureddin and his beautiful Persian wife, resting under a beautiful pagoda after their weary wanderings, were shown in the eighth float. The good Caliph, in the disguise of a fisherman, came to their rescue and restores them to wealth and happiness. The scene was a beautiful one.

One of the grandest and richest tableaux in the entire pageant was shown in the ninth float, in which the Caliph's luxurious court was illustrated. The throne room, the Caliph, his gorgeously uniformed officers and Noureddin and Selima were the feature of the picture, all of them happily treated.

Aladdin and his wonderful lamp were illustrated in the tenth float. The moment at which the monster genie burst into Aladdin's humble home when he nabbed the lamp by chance was chosen for the picture.

Aladdin, walking under a canopy of peacock feathers, gorgeously attired and followed by slaves bearing huge trays of glittering jewels, made the picture of the eleventh float. In the background were two golden and jeweled vases of immense size.

The King of the Sea accompanied by his train of ladies and gentlemen, and mermen and mermaids as attendants, visiting his son-in-law, the king of Persia, was the theme of the twelfth float, which was superbly treated and made an effective picture.

A caravan made up of two dromedaries, an Arabian horse, a burden-bearing ass and four travelers halting at an oasis in the desert formed the realistic picture of the thirteenth float.

Sinbad in his boat just approaching the load of dwarfs was shown in the fourteenth float. A group of the ugly little freaks, with monster heads and covered with long, matted red hair, were shown standing on the shore waiting for the strangers to land.

In float fifteen Sinbad was shown under circumstances which, while appearing unfortunate, turned out to be for the best. He was imprisoned in the tomb of his dead wife according to the law of the strange country he visited. The walls of the tomb were encrusted with gold and precious stones, of which the adventurous sailor took away his pockets full when he was released.

The one-eyed giant, who made a visit to his stamping grounds exceedingly unpleasant for Sinbad and his companions, was pictured in all his uncouth and horrible ugliness in the sixteenth float. He was engaged in the pleasant task of cooking the fat captain for breakfast, and he smiled grimly over the prospective feast. Sinbad and his fellow sailors who were grouped around smiled just as grimly on the other side of their faces at their prospects.

A young roc just emerging from its egg, which has been broken open by sailors, the enormous size of the infant bird overshadowing all surrounding objects, was illustrated in the seventeenth float.

The Persian Prince, flying through the air on his wonderful winged horse, formed a handsome picture for the eighteenth float.

Prince Zeyn Alasnam viewing the eight statu of beautiful women carved from diamonds, in th subterranean cavern, formed the beautiful tablea of the nineteenth float.

In the twentieth float the Queen of the Fairie with eight of her gauzy followers, was dancin around a sparkling fountain in th presence of Ahmed, son of the Sultan of Indi with whom she is desperately in love and afterwards marries.

Two pictures from the story of "The Fort Thieves" were shown with fidelity to truth in th twenty-first float. On the front of the float wa Ali Baba with two pack mules at the entrance t the robber's cave, and in the rear was the youn lady with the enchanted bird.

The last, and one of the loveliest of the floats revealed the rarely beautiful Scheherazade, th wonderful teller of the stories illustrated. T fair romancer was seated by the side of the Su tan entertaining him; her sister sits embroiderin in front, and two trusty slaves stand guard. T Sultan and his bride were seated under a lofty an richly decorated canopy.

All of the floats were marvels of construction, an were richly draped and costumed, the effect unde the gleaming lights being brilliant and beautiful. The people showed their appreciation of the entertainment provided for them by shouts of applaus as each float passed. The music was fine, and th lighting arrangements were excellent.

THE PAGEANT EN ROUTE.

The floats moved out in fair order and passed on Pine street between rows of men, women and chi dren who fairly yelled their approval. It requir several blocks of traveling to get the processio first-class shape, but by the time Jinn reached Eighteenth street the page was in fine order and mov without interruption. The procession turned Eighteenth street where the throng was thicke than on Pine and the windows and temporary seats were crowded. The most brilliant scene, however, was on Washington avenue, where at Fourteenth street the pageant entered the illumi ated section, the arches and cluster throwing the features of the scene in to bright radiance. The St. Loui Club House was ablaze with light, a crescent devic with the words in gas, "The St. Louis Club Welcomes the Veiled Prophets," in front. It was filled with ladies and gentlemen. The temporary structures erected for seating purposes fairly groaned under their loads of people. The pageant moved to ever increasing glories as it went on its way down town, and the culmination was reached on Broadway and Fourth street where the lights were dazzling and the crowds impenetrable. The pageant passed south on Fourth to Clark avenue, and turning went north on Broadway, thence by Franklin avenue to Third, and to the Chestnut street entrance of the Merchants' Exchange. The first float halted at this point, and the Veiled Prophet descended from his lofty perch on the Jinn's back. The Nubian drivers and the fairies descended next, then the Arabians, the genie's bride, the three ladies of Bagdad blushingly stepped down, the barber and his customer, Beder and Gainhare, the mermen and mermaids and all the others until the fair Scheherazade herself tripped from her perch beside the Sultan. The Prophet's followers all went at once to the dressing room provided for them, to prepare for the grand entrance. The floats, as soon as they were relieved of their loads of living freight, moved out Chestnut street to the den.

GOING HOME UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

As soon as the pageant would pass a point there would be a sudden break in the compact mass of people packed along the line in an attempt to leave the crowd and get home. Every street, byway and alley had its living stream of jostling pedestrians. On many of the streets there were temporary blockades of people and vehicles, and the police had as much as they could do disentangling the puzzling knots of wood, iron and writhing flesh. Gangs of men and boys vigorously pushed their way through the throngs regardless of the women and children, who were jostled and jammed in most unpleasant ways. Although there were numerous exciting incidents in the shape of fainting women and crushed children, there were fortunately no serious accidents which have yet been heard of. The wild desire of the people, which was naturally intensified by the news of the strike, was to get home. A rush was made for the nearest street car line where cars were running and hence Market, Olive, Sixth, Locust streets and Franklin avenue were chief objective points. Within an extremely brief space of time after the last float had passed, the cars held at the down town ends of the line were crowded almost to suffocation. Those who could not get inside clung to every available grappling place and the ledges and steps were thronged, and some young men took to the roof. For several hours after the pageant the cars on these lines were packed, and the owl cars through the night were in the same condition. In addition to the cars every kind of vehicle was brought into requisition to carry passengers to all parts of the city. The drivers were calling out their destinations and found no difficulty in securing loads at from 25 to 50 cents a head. The accommodations were utterly insufficient to meet the demand.

The Ball.

The ball in the great Chamber of Commerce Hall was a fitting conclusion to the ceremonies that welcomed the Prophet to the home of his grateful subjects. Good taste and a lavish expenditure of money was evident in everything. The police arrangements were, as usual, complete, and the struggle of carriages to reach the entrance to the building was almost entirely avoided. The dressing-rooms, instead of being up-stairs, as in years gone by, were on the first floor of the building, the ladies' dressing-room occupying the huge room ordinarily used as a bucket-shop, and occupied at former festivals by a restaurant. Thus ladies reached the ball-room fully prepared to take their places on the floor and the bonnets, which in spite of the strict injunctions of the committees have always managed to slip on to the floor, were rigidly excluded. The dressing-rooms being on the first floor, the crush in the small halls above was avoided.

As the guests of the Prophet entered the great hall the first object that caught their attention was in the center of the floor. Its decorations have already been described. Through and between the columns of green that upheld the pagoda around it shone the colored fire from the incandescent lamps about the basin. Glistening through a sheet of ever-falling water, they threw their rainbow hues far out into the air. Between the green columns hung cages of birds whose melody filled the air. The other decorations were no improvement on those of past years. The draping of the gallery had been entirely omitted, while the bank of flowers that covered the front of the rostrum and the picture of the Prophet with his initials in letters of fire were the same that have decorated the hall in other years. Over the floor the usual canvas was spread, but it was put in place before the opening of the ball, and by the time the Prophet had concluded his march around the hall it was not much of a protection from dirt.

THE FIRST GUESTS

arrived about 9 o'clock. They came from the western part of the Prophets' line of march, and reached the hall just as the procession was rounding into Fourth street. From this hour a continuous stream of humanity poured into the hall. The ladies were shown to the seats arranged about the sides of the hall, and the gentlemen remained standing, for never before were the Prophet's invitations so generously responded to, and even standing room was at a premium. Gentlemen unaccompanied by ladies were rigidly excluded from the hall and sought the gallery, two floors higher up. So great was their number that by 10 o'clock every inch of standing room upstairs was taken, and a number of people departed for home without ever having viewed the hall. At 10 o'clock the crowd in the lower hall had grown very dense and the members of the Reception Committee who stood around the entrance were kept more than busy singling out their friends among the arriving guests and escorting them to seats. The orchestra behind the flowers on the rostrum was discoursing sweet music when the announcement was made that the Prophet and his attendant train were about to enter. Conversation was hushed while the Floor Committee, as well as they were able, cleared the space in the center of the hall. Every face was turned toward the door as amid a sudden burst of harmony made his entree on the arm of His Honor Mayor D. R. Francis.

THE VENERABLE PROPHET

Bowing to the crowds on either hand he walked slowly up the hall, followed by his Royal Secretary and the Treasurer of his realm, each on the arm of a member of the Reception Committee. Following in his wake was a train of motley people, some marching with all the dignity that became their characters, others capering about to the great amusement of the spectators, chucking the ladies under the chin and poking the gentlemen in the ribs until they were sore. The Nubian camel drivers performed a stately jig, locked arm in arm. The fairy Banou grasped the hand of one of the Reception Committee and murmured: "I'm just dying for a smoke," but she had to move on. The modern story-teller evidently had an idea that he was the Veiled Prophet, and he held his head at such an angle that he nearly broke his neck.

THE BARBER

flourished his razor and offered to shave any one in the hall at Union prices—fifteen cents. The customer whom he had tortured all the evening dodged behind some of the other characters and kept out of the way as much as possible. Some of the fairies whose attire was rather scant were seen to blush on entering the hall, but they very soon grew accustomed to the glances that were cast at them and walked about as brazenly as any one.

The fisherman offered his fish to the belle of the ball in transit, and was afterwards seen stopping in front of a crowd of well known gentlemen to explain that it was not a circumstance to one he caught at Murdock last Sunday. The three ladies of Bagdad were heard making an attempt at "Three little maids from school are we," but they were in bad voice. The mermaid said a little water was all very well, but for her part she wished some one of the reception committee would pass her out a flask of something stronger. She was hurried along. Last came leaning on the arm of a committeeman and looking about her with the regal air that befitted her importance. Then the crowd surged forward, and blocking up the doorway effectually prevented the entrance of the late arrivals who were coming up the stairs. Around and around the hall the Prophet marched his followers two and two behind him. The line divided, trailed in and out, twisted itself into apparently inextricable entanglements and resolved itself into its original shape. Suddenly, at the sound of a whistle, the line broke and the characters hastened to the seats around the hall to choose from the assemblage of beauty and fashion their partners for

THE FIRST QUADRILLE.

No common creature of earth was permitted on the floor, and the prophets, who were many of them evidently unfamiliar with the dance, went through the figures with all the grace that a pair of legs accustomed to tight-fitting pantaloons and covered with a flowing robe is capable of. As the last figure was completed the whistle blew again, the prophets relinquished their fair partners and the ball was open. The gentlemen who had been hitherto excluded from the floor flocked in and began to seek out the young ladies whose cards had not been filled by the more fortunate gentlemen who had preceded them earlier in the evening. Dancing, which began about 11 o'clock, was continued until a late hour and all who took part in the festivities proclaimed the Prophet's ball of '85 the most successful that he has ever given. At 3 o'clock the lights were turned out, and the great festival of the Veiled Prophet was at an end.

OF THE COSTUMES

worn by the ladies last evening it need only be said that they represented the taste and skill of the most celebrated dressmakers of France, England and America, and that in expensiveness of material and beauty of design, they far excelled anything that has ever been seen in St. Louis before.

THE DANCE PROGRAMME

presented by the Prophet to his guests last evening followed out the general idea of the invitations. They were of cream-colored card, doubled and bearing a picture of the fabled Roc in beautiful steel engraving. Within was fastened a double sheet with the list of dances in plain type. These programmes were distributed by the Floor Committee on presentation of small checks, which were handed to the guests as they entered the hall.

Notes.

No accidents.

Cheers were not plentiful this year.

The pageant got out on the street on time.

There were about 120 characters on the floats.

The total number of lights in the illumination is 32,125.

Notwithstanding the crush the crowds dispersed very quietly.

Chief Harrigan looked handsome in his uniform and regulation hat.

Every window on Fourth street had one or more occupants during the parade.

Mr. Edwin C. S. Hunt escorted Misses Alice and Hobbs Winchester to the ball.

Many of the young ladies on the floats acted in an outrageously shameful manner.

A huge cannon rocket in the midst of a shower of lesser lights gave the signal to start.

The total arrivals by rail at the Union Depot yesterday morning and evening were 48,500.

The city officials had a platform at the east front of the Court House for themselves and families.

Until the police at the head of the procession appeared, all the streets were solid masses of humanity.

The Chestnut street hoodlum wagon had to make several trips through the crowd, but accomplished the feat without trouble.

The crowds did not stay long after the pageant passed. The reason was that many of them had to walk home on account of the street car strike, and they began to do their walking right away.

The Prophet who rode the winged horse wishes it understood that the reason he failed to return the kisses the ladies threw to him was that he had an iron-bound contract to stay on the horse.

Patrick Donahue, who lives on Kossuth avenue, near Cass avenue, had his right leg badly crushed between a wagon and a street car on Sixth and Washington avenue. He was attended to at the Dispensary.

Everybody wants one of those biscuits baked in the "Buck's Brilliant" at the Fair Grounds.

WEDDED TO-DAY.

Two Marriage Ceremonies Celebrated This Afternoon.

Nuptials of W. W. Herron and Miss Rutherford and Mr. Adolph Seckel and Miss Paula Fabian—The Guests, Presents and Costumes.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon Miss Mollie E. Rutherford, daughter of Mr. James Rutherford of the Hamilton & Brown Shoe Company, was married to Judge W. W. Herron of San Antonio, Texas. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Robert of the Church of the Holy Communion in the presence only of the family and a few very intimate friends. Reception will be held from 5 to 7 o'clock p. m., and the bridal pair will leave at 9:30 p. m. for Trenton, Tenn., where they will visit the groom's parents. They then go East before returning to San Antonio, which will be their home.

The bride wore a toilet of soft white faille made with a long princess train finished with a heavy cord and narrow pleating of the silk. The front was of white velvet brocade, vandyked at the bottom, displaying three narrow knife pleatings. The side panels were of deep pleats extending from the waist to the bottom of the skirt, bordered with a feather trimming of frayed satin. The corsage, pointed in front and cut square at the throat, with high Valois collar filled with lace; long sleeves, over which were drawn long kid gloves. The veil, of illusion, was worn with a diamond crescent solitaire, which with a diamond brooch, was all the jewels. No flowers were used save the large lone bunch of white roses.

The bride was attended by Misses Agnes McLane and Ella Brown. Miss McLane wore a dress of peach-bloom silk made en train, the jupe covered with deep flounces of oriental lace; corsage cut square and sleeveless, with bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Ella Brown wore delicate blue surah en train, with tablier covered with falls of Oriental lace; corsage cut square and sleeveless, with finish of lace; Bon Silene roses.

The attending groomsmen were Messrs. Whit Russell and Chauncey Ladd.

THE TOILETS.

Mrs. Rutherford, the mother of the bride, wore a a toilet of gros grain with Chantilly lace trimmings; garniture of point duchess and diamonds.

Miss Adah Rutherford wore white nun's veiling trimmed with Surah silk and Oriental lace, made short, with garniture of pink roses.

Miss Mary Blackburn, from Oshkosh, wore white albatross cloth en train, the tablier composed of alternate knife pleatings of the cloth, with falls of Oriental lace; panels side-pleated; corsage square cut and filled with lace; demi sleeves; knots of white satin ribbon, with pink roses, formed the garniture.

Mrs. Senter wore a toilet of black velvet combined with old gold satin; corsage high, with fichus of duchess lace; diamonds, and bouquet du corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. S. B. Jones wore a costume of Napoleon blue velvet, combined with marigold satin; corsage high, with garniture of duchess lace and diamonds. Bon Silene roses formed the corsage bouquet.

Miss Lucy Wilkins wore cream-tinted brocade, with pardessus of cream-tinted Spanish lace, made short, with belt bouquet of roses.

THE GUESTS.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buck, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Smith, aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harwood, from Kirkwood, and Mrs. Frank S. Green, aunts of the bride; Miss Alice Chilton, Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Barada, Mrs. A. S. Barada, Mrs. McManus Manus and Mr. and Mrs. Walcott, Miss Maggie Mcand Mr. Ward McManus, Mr. A. S. McDonald and Miss Nellie McDonald, Miss Lulu Parrott, Miss Stark, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Fife, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Jack, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Williams, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Chestnut, Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks and Miss Minnie Hendricks, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Barnes, Dr. and Mrs. McNamara, Dr. Wick, Mr. and Mrs. Onstadt, Mr. and Mrs. Mastbrook, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilton, Misses Jessie and Alice Wilton, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bryan, Mrs. James Patrick, Mr. John Francis, Dr. Hyatt, and a number of others.

THE PRESENTS.

From her many friends, the bride received a number of handsome presents, among them:

From Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hamilton, of San Antonio, a solid silver tea set.

A plush upholstered chair, from Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brown.

Silver cake basket, from Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jump.

A brass clock, from the groomsman, Mr. Whit Russell, and Mr. Chauncey Ladd.

An oil painting, handsomely framed, the work and gift of Miss Ella Brown.

A handsome jeweled watch and chain from Mr. James Rutherford, the father of the bride.

A hammered brass umbrella stand from Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carroll.

A crystal vase from Mrs. C. E. Wallace.

A pair of French porcelain vases, shell tinted from Mrs. P. C. Davlin.

Silver card receiver from Miss Mary Blackburn.

A berry spoon from Mrs. F. X. Barada.

A pair of napkin rings, from Mrs. A. L. Barada.

Crystal perfume stands, from Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Mastbrook.

A plush album and brass stand, from Mrs. Jenkins.

A silver card receiver, from Mrs. Jack, and a number of gifts from friends in the city.

At 8 o'clock the bride changed her bridal robe for a handsome traveling suit of seal-brown cloth, with trimmings and draperies of bourette, the same shade; jacket of the bourette cloth, hat of seal-brown to match.

Seckel-Fabian.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss Paula Fabian was married to Mr. Adolph Seckel, a commission merchant of Chicago. The ceremony was performed at the family residence, No. 1107 Dillon street, by the Rev. Dr. Ely in the presence only of the immediate family. Afterward, from 4 to 6 o'clock, there will be a general reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Seckel will leave for Chicago, their future home. There were no bridesmaids. The bride wore a rich wedding dress of heavy white corded silk, made with long princess train, finished by a cord and pleating at the bottom. The front and sides are formed of knife pleats, separated by deep box pleats, extending from the waist to the bottom of the dress. The corsage, pointed in front, is cut Modjeska at the throat with demi-sleeves finished with duchess lace at the throat and sleeves; brooch of diamonds and solitaires, the gift of the groom, were the only jewels used, the bridal veil of illusion being confined to the dark hair by pearl pins. The bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley was presented by Mrs. Adolphus Busch from her conservatory. The bride received a great many costly and beautiful presents.

COLLECTOR BARNUM.

The Hotel Keeper Secures the Internal Revenue Office.

Freeman Barnum has drawn the first prize in the Federal appointment lottery, the Collectorship. He received the news by wire from Washington shortly after 10 o'clock last night and the dispatches in the morning papers confirmed his information. Mr. Barnum has not been considered an overwhelmingly strong applicant for the place. Mr. Phil Green was the favorite with a great many, while others thought that Mr. Bird of Cape Girardeau would get it. Judge Chauncey Shultz, George W. Colley and Charles Anderson were favorites also. Mr. Barnum is well known to St. Louisans, having followed the trade of his father, hotel-keeping, for many years. His father was the late Thomas Barnum, the founder of the old Barnum's Hotel, and proprietor of it for twenty-five years. The respect and esteem in which the father's memory was held, as well as the prominence of Mr. Barnum's family, had much to do, it is thought, with influencing the appointment. On the streets it was said that the appointment was secured by W. H. Barnum, chairman of the National Democratic Committee. Business men hold that the appointment is due to their strong backing, Mr. Barnum having earned it by his hard work in the pushing of every enterprise ever suggested for the promotion of the growth and wealth of the city. Politicians think it was gained because Mr. Barnum was strongly indorsed by Senators Vest and Cockrell and by Representatives Glover, Clardy and Hatch. The fact is Mr. Barnum was very strongly indorsed at home and abroad, by Democrats, Independents and non-politicians.

The office of Collector of Internal Revenue pays a salary of $4,500 per annum. The Collector is required to give a bond of $180,000. The patronage of the office consists of one chief clerk, fifteen deputies, thirteen gaugers and fourteen storekeepers. The present subordinates in the office are Republicans, with the exception of Paul Heuer, chief gauger, and Theodore Childs, who has charge of the tobacco interest. Mr. Barnum has no idea of when he will go into the office. He expects to receive his blank bond in a few days and will then proceed to have it filled out. He is having a cast-iron suit made to assist him in resisting the attacks to be made on him now for a place.

When at the Fair do not fail to call at the Buck's Brilliant pavilion and procure one of those splendid biscuits.

The Charter Amendments.

There was a very small vote at the Charter amendments election yesterday, and, although no results have been figured out yet, it is safe to say that the three first amendments have been carried and the three last defeated. The total vote is about 10,000. Five precincts are yet to be heard from. Leaving out these precincts, the vote on the three first amendments stands about 6,145 in the affirmative and 2,908 in the negative. The number of votes necessary to adoption on this scale is 5,430. The last three amendments will hardly receive that many. These are the most important ones, involving the serious changes in the methods of taxation that appeared to be imperative in order to secure equalization.

How delicious those Buck's Brilliant biscuits baked perfectly. Try one.

Hendricks To-Night.

Vice-President Hendricks and party will arrive in the city this evening via the bridge from East St. Louis in charge of a committee of reception by the Mayor. He will be taken to the Southern Hotel for supper and afterwards, in charge of an entertainment committee, will witness the base ball tournament and visit the Exposition.

Legal Notes.

In the matter of the St. Joseph & St. Louis leased line the master in the Wabash case reports due from the Wabash on account of rent for six months, to March 1, $28,572 37. The operation of the road has been a burden to the rest of the Wabash system.

In the Ore and Steel Company's case the receiver filed a petition to-day in the Federal Court for authority to extend collateral notes. An order issued accordingly. A petition was also filed for authority to advance miners' wages in Jackson County from 2½ cents per bushel to 3 cents. That order issued likewise.

SKIN AND BLOOD

Diseases from Pimples to Scrofula Cured by Cuticura.

Hundreds of letters in our possession, copies of which may be had by return of mail, repeat this story: I have been a terrible sufferer for years from diseases of the Skin and Blood; have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors; have had the best physicians; have spent hundreds of dollars, and got no relief until I used the Cuticura Remedies, which have cured me and left my skin and blood as pure as a child's.

COVERED WITH SALT RHEUM.

Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent, internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, externally.

Newark, Ohio. J. W. Adams.

HEAD, FACE AND BODY RAW.

I commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies last July. My head and face and some parts of my body were almost raw. My head was covered with scabs and sores, and my suffering was fearful. I had tried everything I had heard of in the East and West. My case was considered a very bad one. I have now not a particle of Skin Humor about me, and my case is considered wonderful.

Decatur, Mich. Mrs. S. E. Whipple.

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO FEET.

Charles Eayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes: "My son, a lad of 12 years, was completely cured of a terrible case of Eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. From the top of his head to the soles of his feet was one mass of scabs." Every other remedy and physicians had been tried in vain.

MONEY.

Wall Street.

New York, October 7.—The stock market was somewhat irregular at the opening this morning, Lake Shore being down ¼, N. Y. Central, St. Paul and Pacific Mail each ¼, Western Union, Erie and M. K. & T. unchanged, and the rest of the active list ¼ to ⅜ higher. From the opening the market was strong throughout the first hour, led by Lackawanna which rose 1¼ to 110⅛; Jersey Central also gained over 1 per cent and the rest of the list fractional amounts. In the early dealings Union Pacific was active and strong, but the activity subsided after 10:30. Among the inactive stocks Oregon Railway and Navigation has been prominent for an advance of 2¼ per cent to 84½. At 11 o'clock the market is active and strong. Sales first hour 60,000 shares.

COMMERCE.

NOTHING NEW.

In the Wheat Market—Some Fears of a Deal in Corn—Provisions Quiet.

Special by Telegraph from Pickering & Co., Chicago, to the Post-Dispatch.

Chicago, October 7.—Wheat opened nearly a cent higher under a short demand from all classes of buyers. The weather was wet, leading operators to look for a material lightening in receipts, cables were firm, and the active buying of yesterday created a local demand not easy to fill. After considerable trading at the advance the market began to ease off on realizing sales, and on the first sign of weakness the bears jumped in and sold the market down. At a half cent decline a new set of buying orders, coming mainly from the West, had to be filled and the remainder of the day the market was steady. There was not much outside news. The export business was reported better, private cables stronger and a continuance of bad weather predicted were the main bull points, while the big receipts, amounting to 525,000 bushels, at Western points, was the great standing bear argument. Many, however, claim that this week will be the last of the present big run of wheat. Flour men report a fair demand for flour, with the prospect that it will improve. The market here closed firm.

Oats were in fair demand, and prices are higher in sympathy with corn. Sample sales take care of all the arrivals.

Corn was active and strong under a good demand for cash. The market advanced to 43⅜c and closed firm. Receipts were small, and nearly the entire stock of contract corn is under shipping orders, which makes shorts for this month rather nervous. But as yet there are no signs of any deal or manipulation. The country is buying corn rather freely, and the prospects are that it will be some time before new corn is available.

Provisions were dull and steady, with some demand for November pork.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING 1 P. M.

Wheat—Nearly every trader in the pit was long a five or more this morning, and that they felt bullish goes without saying. Nearly everything favored them, too, and they opened the market ¼@⅜c higher. Chicago was ¼ higher at the opening and New York considerably advanced also. Receipts here were very light and small at all the winter wheat markets, but the receipts of spring wheat kept up to large proportions. The weather in this section was fine, but unfavorable in the North, which was one reason Chicago was so strong. Another reason was the strong tone of English cables and the good demand noted, a penny advance in Liverpool spot wheat being reported, also. The imports of flour and wheat into the United Kingdom last week were equal to 2,674,000 bus, which, added to the week's farmers' deliveries, were 84,000 bus more than the consumptive requirements of the Kingdom. The market eased off from the early advance, but did not exhibit much weakness and lost only ⅛@¼c, the market holding up remarkably well. Few there were who would sell and the demand absorbed all offered without straining. Later there was a strong rally, and the close was at tip-top rates for session, and ⅛@¼c above yesterday's close. October sold late at 95½; November ranged from 97¼ to 96⅞, opening and closing at 97¼; December at 99⅛ to 99, opening and closing at 99⅛; May at $1 09⅛ to $1 09, opening and closing at $1 09⅛; January brought $1 01⅛ on noon call. The market for cash grades was dull, but this was principally owing to the small amount on sale. Millers were anxious to buy and pay higher rates, and only in this way could they get any. No. 2 red 95⅛ East side and for this side 96 bid; No. 3 red 93 bid this side; No. 4 83 bid for V., 83⅛ for St. L.; rejected 73½ bid for V. and St. L.

Corn opened ⅛c higher and was firm, as other markets were better, cables firm, and receipts at this point much smaller than they have been. The market, however, eased off later in the day and finally closed with buyers at about yesterday's latest rates. October sold at 39⅛ to 39¼; November sold at 36⅛, and later 36⅜ asked, 36¼ bid; year at 34⅛, and on noon call 34⅛@¼ asked, 34 bid; June was offered at 33⅛ late, though that was bid early; May held at 36⅛, bid 36 early and 35⅞ late. Except No. 2 white mixed, which sold ⅛c lower, cash grades were firm, and for No. 2 mixed the export demand was steady. No. 2 mixed 4⅛@40 regular, 40⅛ in St. L. and M.; No. 2 white-mixed 41 east side, 41⅛@4⅛ in St. L.; rejected do 39 in U., 40@40⅛ in St. L.; rejected 38 regular, 38⅛ E. and 38⅛@38⅝ this side; no grade 36 this side, 36⅛ in M.

Oats—Futures were firm and higher, with a demand that was not supplied. November sold at 25 and year at 24⅝, and these prices were bid for more without getting any. October was offered at 24⅞, bid 24⅝; May at 29⅛, bid 29⅛. Cash grades firm, higher and in order demand. No. 2, 24⅛@24⅝ regular, 25 in St. L.; rejected 23⅛ regular; no grade 20 bid regular.

Rye—Higher grade, No. 2 selling regular at 58⅛, and for rejected 56 bid.

Barley dull and unchanged. Prices range as follows (little Wisconsin and no Minnesota arriving; Rejected 40@45; No. 3 50@55; prime 60@65; choice 70@80; fancy 85@90, outside for Iowa.

Flour—There was a very fair shipping inquiry and the market was steady and firm at about the same rates as were current the day before. There was no change of any kind. We quote: xx $3 10@3 20, xxx $3 30@3 40; family $3 55@3 65; choice $3 90@4 00; fancy $4 35@4 45; extra do, including favorite brands, $4 65@4 85; patent $5@5 35. These prices are for lots on arrival at depot and levee; order lots higher.

Cornmeal—Unchanged at $1 90@1 95 city on orders delivered; pearl meal and grits nominal at $2 75@3 00.

Rye Flour—Steady at $3 65@3 75.

Hay steady, with all sound grades in demand. Quotations are as follows: This side—Prairie $7@9 00; mixed $8@10; timothy $10 50 to $13 for prime to fancy; East track stock sells about 50c per ton below above rates.

Provisions were firmer and the order demand continued good for meats, but otherwise the markets were dull. Up country dry salt c'ribs were sold at 5¼ c. and f. here, and some sales were made, but terms kept private. Standard mess pork sold at $8 87½. Late yesterday prime steam lard sold at 5.90, but to-day it was worth 6. Small sales of loose dry salt f. o. b. on cash orders. Shoulders at 3.40, longs at 5.30, c'ribs at 5½ and shorts at 5.70; boxed shoulders sold at 3¼, c'ribs at 5.60 and shorts at 5⅝@5.80. Packed bacon longs sold at 5.8@5.90, c'ribs at 6, and shorts at 6.35@6½. Country bacon, sides 5½@6; shoulders 3½@3¾; hams 6½@7½. Country lard 5½@5¾ in irregular pkgs City hams 9½@11. Breakfast bacon 7½@9½. Beef—Family $10@13 ₽ brl, according to brand; on orders, higher, $6@7 per ½-brl; dried $10@11; selected $13; smoked tongues $5@5 50 per doz. Tallow—Strictly prime, in oil barrels, 5½; No. 2 5; choice in irregular packages 5¼; No. 2 4¾; tallow grease 4¼@4½. Grease—Brown and yellow 3@4½; white 4½@4¾. Salt—Domestic $1 05@1 10 per brl, as in size of lot, ground alum $1 10 per sack—small way higher.

Highwines steady on a basis of $1 06: whisky $1 03. Sales of 155 brls spirits at $1 55, 50 brls do at $1 06. Cincinnati firm at $1 05; Chicago $1 10; Peoria $1 04.

Lead quiet and unchanged. Although sales of refined have been reported at $4 15 sellers find that price impossible to reach, and the best figure obtainable is $4 12½, at which 100 tons sold. Chemical hard firm, with sales of 10 cars this side at $4 10.

Cotton.

The general tendency of the markets at all points and in all lines was downward. On this side spots were pretty steady though quiet, but at Liverpool the market was dull and in buyers' favor, there being a decline of 1-16. Options were flat at the start and closed quiet at a decline of 2-64 to 3-64d. New York and New Orleans futures although lower were pretty steady at the decline, the fluctuations in prices being very slight. Local trading was quiet, the sales amounting to 730 bales at former rates.

Local Spot Quotations—Low to ordinary 7¼; ordinary 8; good ordinary 8⅝; low middling 9⅛; middling 9⅜; good middling 9⅝; middling fair 10⅛; stained and tinged not quoted.

Receipts, Shipments and Stocks.—Gross receipts to-day 2,856 bales, against 1,798 last year; since September, 1885 20,152 bales, against 12,153 same time last year; shipments to-day 2,106 bales, against 826 bales last year; since September 1, 1885, 15,834 bales, against 8,443 bales same time last year; stocks in compresses and warehouses to-day 5,927 bales, against 5,181 bales.

CATTLE—Early receipts were not large this morning, on the contrary they were considerably below the wants of buyers and those who were fortunate enough to have stock that came up to the requirements of buyers, found no trouble in closing out at good prices. Both local dealers and the dressed beef people wanted cattle and were willing to pay what was demanded but only for really desirable lots though no class of cattle sold any lower during the early hours. The average quality was not as good as usual, but there were several loads of heavy Texans that were taken by dressed beef and interior shippers at $3 65 and some natives by the same at $4 25@4 45. Other sales were to local operators at a range from $3 50@3 85 for light to fair range cattle. Later in the day, the supply increased by quite a train of range cattle, but local buyers at this time had about supplied themselves and withdrawn, salesmen being dependent upon Eastern and interior shippers. We quote values as follows:

Ruling Quotations—Exporters $5 25@5 60; for good to heavy steers $5 00@5 30; light to fair steers $4 50@4 85; common to medium native steers $4 00@4 40; Southwest steers $3 50@4 55; grass Texans $2 50@3 65; native cows and heifers, common to choice, $2 25@3 50; scalawags of any kind $1 40@2 75; milch cows and calves $15 00@40 00; veal calves $5 00@7 50.

HOGS—Supply again small and trade active on shipping account alone, but at a shade easier prices. All other descriptions were about steady, or may be a shade weaker, but not any lower. Shippers bought at a range from $3 65@3 95, including lights and yorkers. Some sales of pigs were also made on a basis of $3 25@3 50, but only a few changed hands at this figure. Butchers were light purchasers at $4@4 10, while sales of fair to medium weights to packers were made at $3 85@3 95, rough mixed to choice heavies being reported salable at $3 40@3 75. At the above rates the small offerings were readily disposed of, the market continuing steady to the end.

A HORSE-CAR strike during Fair Week is a mistake.

THE Veiled Prophet started on time. As a car starter or a street railroad president, he would be a great success.

A STRIKE sells the POST-DISPATCH and brings in money to the newsboys, but we deprecate strikes during Fair Week.

THE appointment of a Collector on the basis of "ascertained fitness" leads us to hope that the Postmaster will not be appointed on the basis of "ascertained unfitness."

ST. JOSEPH is putting on metropolitan airs. It is trying to fight a gas company. Bigger cities than St. Joseph have tried that feat and have failed ignominiously.

RATHER than endure the horrors of life in Chicago a Pennsylvania murderer confessed his crime and will be taken home and hung. His choice was a hard one.

THE President has made an appointment from the list of "business men's candidates." The Globe-Democrat called this "sentimental bosh," but the Globe-Democrat is not the organ of the present administration.

STATESMAN JOE RICKEY is in town confidently waiting to hear of the appointment of his candidate to the Postmastership. His idea is that if HYDE is Postmaster RICKEY will draw the salary. It's all in the draw.

THE Veiled Prophets' procession last night started on time to the minute and never halted. The managers would do well to go on to Washington and give CLEVELAND the tip about starting the Procession of Offensive Partisans.

REPUBLICAN papers keep harping on FITZHUGH LEE'S "rebel cavalry escort." They object to it because it is a proof that they have sold the Republican party in Virginia to MAHONE and WISE for goods which the renegades cannot deliver.

THERE is room for hope even for the bad. In Cleveland no lawyer could be found willing to defend the scoundrel THOMPSON, who maimed and disfigured a young lady for refusing his coward hand in marriage. In St. Louis the viler the criminal the more eager the bar is to secure the privilege of turning him loose on society.

THE campaign epithets that are flying to and fro in Virginia render the atmosphere a little hazy, but are otherwise harmless. For real slaughter-house language and blood-dripping figures of speech we must look to Ohio. "ST. JOHN took the hide from HALSTEAD'S carcass last night and coolly hung it on the fence," says the Enquirer. "He made the cadaver look as though it had gone through a season of dissection when subjects are scarce." They know how to paint a campaign red in Ohio.

MR. LAMAR is about to issue an order for the strict enforcement of a statute which forbids ex-officers of the Government from appearing as advocates in cases upon which they have acted officially within two years. The fact that thirty or forty officials of the Land Office have left the public service within the last ten years to turn up immediately as attorneys for land grant railroads, indicates that the Government is the victim of a great deal of corrupting influence exercised over its salaried servants by the great corporations. But the statute in question will prove a feeble remedy for the evil.

AT a Brooklyn meeting of Independent Republicans the other day, MR. BEECHER said:

My mugwump friends, we have not been mistaken in the man who now sits in the Presidential chair. He is a singularly wise man. He has demonstrated to us his honesty and his fearlessness. He labors not for any party, but for the good of the whole nation, certainly as well as any President who has ruled us within my lifetime.

And yet MR. BEECHER holds that the way to indorse and support MR. CLEVELAND is by electing a Republican State ticket whose platform arraigns and denounces MR. CLEVELAND and his administration as unwise and unworthy of trust. The ways of the mugwump mind are past finding out.

IT would be hard to name a single movement in recent years connected with the welfare of St. Louis to which FREEMAN BARNUM has not lent a willing and helping hand. He has been ready at every call on his patriotism with his time, his work, and his money. He has not cared to figure as a colonel, he has been satisfied to serve as a private, and he has done good service. His cheerful alacrity, his unfailing good humor, his untiring energy have been of inestimable value as an encouragement and an example, and all St. Louis stands ready to congratulate him on his appointment as Collector of Internal Revenue. There is no question of his fitness, his capacity and his integrity, and it is no disparagement to any of his competitors to say that he had the first right to recognition. The appointment is a good one and St. Louis approves of Collector BARNUM mentally, morally, physically, socially, commercially and politically.

THE state of man who to-day puts forth the tender leaves of hope and, to-morrow, blossoms and bears his blushing honors thick upon him, and on the third day meets a frost, a killing frost which nips his root, is most minutely represented in the rise, grandeur and downfall of young TOMMY ROBERSON of Missouri. Armed with his cheek and a good suit of clothes, Master ROBERSON easily obtained from Senators and Congressmen letters vaguely but eulogistically recommending him for nothing in particular, but worded so as to convey the impression that if there was any place vacant anywhere he was the man to fill it. Thus did he put forth the tender leaves of hope. Thus equipped he overhauled the statutes of the last session, found that there was an appropriation for adjusting claims by Indian depredations and that no one had been appointed to spend the money. Upon calling the attention of Secretary LAMAR to this inexplicable omission Master ROBERSON was immediately appointed Commissioner, with a salary of $2,500 a year, the title of "Judge!" a clerk, a stenographer, an office in the department with the inevitable bath and toilet accompaniments, and thus did he bear his blushing honors thick upon him. In fact, they were too thick, for as soon as the Senators and Congressmen found that Master ROBERSON had been appointed on their letters, they told the good Secretary of the Interior to take his spectacles off and read between the lines, and straightway they hoisted the juvenile judge from his place of pride. Judge ROBERSON will get a clerkship, but it is safe to say that hereafter Mr. LAMAR will examine the applicant for office, as well as the credentials.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 7.—The WORLD says in its editorial columns to-day: "It pleases the Republican organs now to charge that Gen. Jones, the Democratic nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, although a soldier in the late war, was a coward and a skulker. They charge that when the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment was assaulted in Baltimore in 1861 he (Jones) hid in a railway car. It is the policy of the good Republican organs always to assume that there were no Democratic soldiers. Failing in this, they are always ready to prove that all Democratic soldiers were cowards or deserters. In this way they strengthen themselves immensely with the aged military element of the country."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "If the Senate is to be redeemed from Republican ascendancy, and the Administration is to be sustained by that body during the latter half of Cleveland's term, the Democrats have no time to lose in harmonizing their differences. Nor can the Administration stand a passive spectator of contests on the results of which the success of the party so largely depends."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The Democratic Cabinet is united in its opposition to American commerce and shipbuilding. Secretary Whitney delays the construction of the new navy and compels the greatest American shipbuilder to surrender. Attorney-General Garland supports him in a decision which will effectually put an end to the building of Government vessels by contractors. Postmaster-General Vilas arrays himself in hostility to the steamship corporations and steadily promotes the interests of foreign lines. Secretary Manning invites proposals for the revision of the tariff, and paralyzes the productive energies of the country. The Secretaries are all pulling together against American industry."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "The President is in a position similar to that of Senator Edmunds and many other Republicans last year, when they shut their eyes and voted the Republican ticket. The Times, fortunately, acknowledges no obligation to support the unworthy candidates of any party. It heartily supports the reform administration of President Cleveland, and it will continue to support it by doing its utmost to defeat David B. Hill, who was nominated by a combination of Democrats who are now opposed to the President's policy with Democrats who last year opposed his election; and the fact that the President still desires the success of the Democratic party in New York as earnestly, perhaps, as he desired it three months ago in no wise alters our purpose to labor for the defeat of the unworthy candidate of that party. The sincerest friends of the President probably desire Mr. Hill's defeat more earnestly than he desires his election."

PEOPLE'S FORUM.

From the Down Town Stores.

ST. LOUIS, October 7, 1885.

To the Editor of the POST-DISPATCH.

Seeing that no one has put in a good word for the employes of down-town retail stores I, as an employe, would ask you, even at the eleventh hour, to grant space for the following suggestion: That our employers give us half a day to enable us to see the Fair. I may say that since I have been in the city I have not had the pleasure of seeing the Fair. Hoping, Mr. Editor, that you will lend your aid in giving us a boost, I am, yours respectfully,

ANXIOUS.

Woman's Alleged Extravagance.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

This talk about woman's extravagance is only accepted as truth because the male man keeps the ledgers and his wife has nothing but a debit in them. It isn't fair. If a man were to deal honestly and squarely and figure up his own expenses and all he gets for them, the woman could rise up before him a perfect angel of sense in expenditure, and make him blush.

Knew Themselves.

Overheard from the Omnibus.

"Dear children," said the teacher, "to-day relate I a story. The Anton was a good boy who throughout no badness bear could. One day saw he that bad boys a dog with stones assailed. Then spoke he to them: 'O, how bad are you! Upon the place will me be thrown at!' The bad boys held in; and now guess what they further done have." All the scholars, with one voice: "They have at the Anton the stones thrown!"

THE STRIKE.

Most of the Lines Running Nearly All Their Cars To-Day.

The Police Called Out to Suppress Several Rumored Outbreaks,

But Are Unable to Locate Any Trouble —Scenes at the Termini of All the Lines—Street Car Presidents Say All Lines Will Be Running By 6 p. m.—A Striker's Statement—Situation This Afternoon.

There were several hundred striking street car employes gathered about Central Turner Hall this morning, coming and going and talking in groups about their fight with the railway managers. The POST-DISPATCH reporter who went to the hall passed a throng of drivers and conductors, who were talking excitedly about the action of certain men on the Cass Avenue Line, and their language was far from complimentary. They said that twelve cars were running on that line manned by scabs and old employes who had refused to stick to the order. At the entrance to the hall a gang of men rushed out, and when asked where they were going, replied, with several picturesque oaths, that they were going to see about those Cass avenue fellows.

In the hall the executive committee was in executive session on the top floor, and their proceedings were conducted under the greatest secrecy. In a room below the executive board was in session. Mr. Secretary Heep would not materialize on a call for him. After a wait, however, Mr. Fuller of the Board came out to see the reporter.

"There is nothing to say," said Mr. Fuller, without waiting for a question. "We can say nothing about our plans or prospects."

"You can give me an idea of the situation, can you not?"

"No, I cannot say anything except that we are sanguine of success and expect to win."

"Cars are running on most of the roads this morning; how does that happen?"

"Yes, a few cars are being run by strangers, but the lines cannot get honorable men to take the places of the old men. The new men are bad characters, and no citizen would want to ride with them."

"Is there any danger of violence from the men?"

"We have issued strict instructions not to interfere with the running of the cars. We are attending to our own business."

WHAT THE MANAGERS THINK.

The presidents of the various roads affected by the strike engaged in a vain chase after each other last night, with the intention of holding a conference on the situation, but were unable to get together, and hence no conference was held. As soon as the strike was inaugurated the managers went to work engaging new men and sending out cars as fast as the men would consent to take them out. Some of the old employes who turned in their cars said they were willing to work if they were guaranteed protection from violence. This guarantee was given and work was resumed by the men in this position.

MR. JOHN SCULLIN,

of the Union Depot Line, said that all of his cars on the Union Depot Line were running this morning and three-fourths of the cars on the Mound City Line were in operation. He expected to have all the cars he needed on the lines by to-night. Mr. Chas. Green received a report from Superintendent Shea of the People's Line stating that he had sent out four cars early this morning and was sending others straight along as men were obtained. He said there would be no trouble on his line after to-day. The managers of other roads were equally sanguine of bridging over their difficulties, and from their statements it would appear that there was prospect of a speedy settlement of the strike.

A STATEMENT FROM STRIKERS.

Two striking street-car men visited the POST-DISPATCH office to-day to say that Mr. Maxon was hiring ex-jailbirds to take the place of the conductors and drivers who had left his employ at 2 o'clock yesterday. They wanted the facts published with the names of the unfortunates who had this record, and they felt very badly when the POST-DISPATCH refused to print the names. The men had worked on the Washington Avenue Line, and said only four of the old men had refused to go out. They explained the attitude of the strike as follows:

"About ten cars are running on Washington avenue this morning; all but two are manned by green men, a few cars are running now on all the lines, and no attempt has been, or will be, made to interfere with the new drivers or conductors. The roads which are not striking are the Olive and Market Street roads, including Mr. Raill's Forest Park road, the South St. Louis, the Franklin Avenue and the Fourth and Locust or Union Line. The men on the Locust Street and Franklin Avenue lines have had their pay advanced 50 cents a day; the Olive and Market Street roads, all three of them pay 15 cents a trip to conductors, who earn $30 to $33 every two weeks, and 15 cents a trip to drivers, whose fortnightly earnings are from $44 to $48. The Washington avenue conductors have been getting 15½ cents a trip and the drivers 13 cents. On the South St. Louis Road the men are getting $2 a day for conductors and $1 75 for drivers, and the hours are twelve per day. The employes on all these lines are satisfied and have not been asked to strike. The Benton-Bellefontaine drivers are striking for $2. They have been getting $1 75 per day for twelve hours work."

THE MOUND CITY LINE.

At the stables of the Mound City Line, on St. Louis avenue, used by both the Mound City and Jefferson Avenue Lines, the strikers were quiet, and did not interfere with the cars that were being sent out with new men, who were taken on as applications were received. A number of the strikers congregated on Jefferson avenue, a block west of the stables, but no violence was attempted. A few cars were run on this line last night, and at 6:30 this morning the first car was started, followed in a half hour by another, and at noon fully three-fourths of the regular number of cars were in motion, and were well patronized.

SITUATION AT THE BROADWAY STABLES.

The only new features in the strike on the Broadway Line is that two or three cars had passed over the road up to noon. The drivers and conductors stand around in groups of six or seven, near the stables at Broadway or Salisbury street, discussing the situation. At exactly 8:10 o'clock this morning summer car No. 78 started for the lower part of the city. The driver was one of the stable men, and the conductor, Abner Kincher, an ex-policeman and an extra conductor on the road. Although there were hoots and yells from the spectators who lined the sidewalk, no demonstration was made, and the cars passed through in safety. This gave some encouragement to the officials of the road. At 9 o'clock two more cars, Nos. 108 and 128, were turned out and proceeded south. Aside from a few jeers the cars passed along quietly until Buchanan street, four squares below the stables, was reached. Here an attempt at intimidation was made. Two or three men, two of whom were extra drivers, stepped out on the cross-walk and very politely commanded the driver to bring his car to a stop. The driver refused very flatly and then was forced into submission by a threat that unless he complied he would have his head smashed to a jelly. This had the desired effect and the teams were changed and the cars run back and turned into the barn. At 9:30 o'clock, President Christian Peper arrived in great haste and ordered another car turned out. He took a seat and a few other passengers availed themselves of a chance to go down by rail. The car went through all right. After this an occasional car was sent down town.

Out of the eighty cars probably not over six are running. No trouble is anticipated, as Sergeant Barney Williams and two officers are on duty near the stables.

THE BENTON-BELLEFONTAINE ROAD.

At the stables of the Benton-Bellefontaine Railroad Company, Twentieth, near Penrose streets, everything was quiet. Out of the forty cars, six were running regularly at noon, managed by "extras" and stablemen.

The Situation at Noon.

At noon to-day a POST-DISPATCH reporter made a tour of the down-town district, which includes the termini of all the lines but the Jefferson avenue. The starter for the Franklin avenue line stated that the company had all its cars in service and running regularly. In evidence of this fact half a dozen cars arrived during the short time the reporter stood on the corner, and all departed at regular intervals.

The People's Railway, or Fourth street line, had ten cars in service at noon, according to Superintendent Shea. The first car was started out of the stable about 11:15 with a new driver and one of the regular conductors. Only one or two of the regular drivers would go out. The remainder stood around the stable and refused to touch a car. Superintendent Shea, who had driven down to Fourth street to see that everything was in good shape, said that the men at the stables were quiet at present, but he expected that there would be some trouble. A discharged conductor named G. B. Withrow had been seen driving toward the stable, and he feared he might incite the men to some disturbance.

The Washington avenue yellow line was running five double cars and five extension cars at long intervals. The Blue Line, or Fourteenth Street Line, was running about six cars, but on no regular time.

They came down bunched or an hour apart.

The Benton—Bellefontaine had no cars running.

The Union Railway, Fourth and Locust, was running its full complement of cars.

On the Pine street lines almost all the cars were reported running out at irregular intervals. About noon quite a crowd gathered at the terminus and watched a crowd of small boys swing a bobtail car around the turn-table. The driver could not comprehend what was the matter at first, and when he did he was without protection, the police being absent for the moment. By a bit of sharp work he finally got off the platform.

The Olive street, Sixth street, Market street and Laclede lines were running all their cars.

On the Broadway Line only one car had been seen all morning and the patrons of the lines were industriously pegging along afoot.

The terminus of the Cass Avenue line was the scene of what promised for a time to result in something serious. Shortly after 11 o'clock a crowd of ex-employes and strikers gathered at the corner of Broadway and Walnut street, and after trying the effect of argument on the drivers of several cars, finally grabbed one of the men and jerked him off the front platform. There was naturally some delay in starting the car and quite a crowd gathered. Sergeant Kiely hearing of the disturbance sent to the Four Courts for two squads of police, and shortly after had fourteen men on the spot. The crowd increased, but to 12:30 there had been no further disturbance.

The Situation at 3 P. M.

At 3 o'clock the situation is unchanged, except that a few more cars have been run out and are moving without molestation. The Broadway line is running only two cars and the Benton-Bellefontaine none at all. The police are in constant receipt of telephone messages announcing anticipated trouble at Fourth and Pine and Fourth and Washington avenue, but none has materialized as yet. Chief Harrigan is in charge at Broadway and Walnut, and is seeing that the crowd keeps moving. The Cass avenue drivers express some fear of the rough element near the stables, but are sticking to their cars.

A Small Riot.

At 3 p. m. a small riot broke out at the Lindell stables, 2305 Washington avenue. The horse was unhitched from a car and driven away, and the driver, named James Mauly, was struck with a stone. Mr. Maxon, to avoid further trouble, called in all the Lindell Railway cars.

Citizens Settling the Strike.

At 3 p. m. to-day citizens who patronize the People's Railway, Fourth street, held a meeting and arranged to drive and conduct that Line the rest of the week. Other meetings will probably follow to run the other lines in the same way.

The Broadway Cars Laid Up.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the last two cars on the Broadway Line were turned into the stable, the men in charge being forced to abandon their posts. This leaves no cars on the road now in movement.

MARVELS IN MILLINERY.

The Magnificent Display at Penny & Gentles' Opening.

A new era of trade is developing in the neighborhood of Broadway and Franklin avenue, and one of the most important factors in pushing this development is the firm of Penny & Gentles, whose immense retail dry goods and millinery establishment is at the southwest corner of the thoroughfares named. A POST-DISPATCH reporter who was attracted thither by the large crowds that were entering the store, dropped in and learned that there was a grand opening going on which began this morning, and will continue to-morrow. There were throngs of ladies in the aisles and the whole place wore a gala-day appearance. The opening is given in celebration of the new millinery, cloak and suit departments which have been added in the past few months, an entire new building having been built, and its two floors thrown open in that time. The house now has 100 feet front on Franklin avenue and an equal front on Broadway. Both floors are occupied and crowded thick with stocks of goods. Rich and attractive decorations have been placed at intervals down stairs where the dry goods and notions are retailed, and everywhere all through the building are to be seen beautiful articles tastefully arranged to catch the eye and delight the female heart. A large elevator of the latest improved pattern with a handsome cab carries customers and sight seers up stairs. The second floor is a revelation of all that is wonderful and beautiful in millinery, and all that is charming and artistic in ladies' dresses. Leaving the elevator, the millinery shelves and counters and cases stare the visitor in the face; they are brilliant in bonnets and hats of the latest shades and shapes, while bright trimmings gleam in the show-cases and splendor is apparent everywhere. Mrs. Hess very kindly gave the reporter all the information he wanted, showing him a Fedora hat of black, with bead trimmings and a heavy black feather; a Genesta hat which has the latest effect, all the trimming being in the back, and Jersey walking hats with Roman sash and gold ornaments, and the Irene pattern, which is a perfect daisy. She explained that millinery is now worn in colors, not shades, and that hats were trimmed to match dress goods which had a rough, wooly appearance. The display of millinery is simply marvelous. The ladies' suits exhibited were all of new and beautiful patterns, and in the cloak department the latest ideas in wraps from tailor cloth to sealskin and the finest plush were to be seen. The babies' department was attractive, and the array of shawls, blankets and other goods filled the scene with warmth and seemed to give a right cordial welcome to the approaching winter. Penny & Gentles' grand opening continues through to-morrow.

EVERY ONE going to the Fair should get one of those hot biscuits baked in the celebrated Buck's Brilliant stove.

THE TRADES' PAGEANT.

All in Readiness for the Parade To-Morrow Night.

Everything is in readiness for the Trades' Pageant, which occurs to-morrow night. The floats are in readiness to move out of the den on a moment's notice, and nothing but a severe rain will prevent the pageant from taking place. A number of excursion trains will reach the city to-morrow afternoon, and the prospects are that as big a crowd will witness the procession as saw the parade last night. The Topeka Flambeau Club is expected this evening or to-morrow morning. The route of the procession will be as follows: From Chouteau avenue, north on Fourth street to Franklin avenue; Franklin avenue west to Broadway; Broadway, south to Olive street; Olive street, west to Fifteenth street; Fifteenth street, north to Washington avenue; Washington avenue, east to Broadway; Broadway, south to Elm street.

Several of Cody's cowboys will appear on their mustangs with the J. B. Sickles Saddlery Company float to-morrow evening. The cowboys will ride their mustangs and wear their trappings, and will thus add greatly to the beauty of an otherwise very handsome float.

HOME COMFORT RANGES.

Displays to be seen at the Fair and Exposition.

At both the Exposition and the Fair, the Wrought Iron Range Company has exhibits that take the fancy of the housewife immediately and illustrate the advancement which has been made in the manufacture of that most important factor of all households, cooking apparatus. The exhibits are made attractive by the large quantity of burnished metal that enters into the heaters and appliances that are accessories of the main features of the exhibit. The Home Comfort range is the grand object of interest in both displays. It is an achievement in wrought iron that is regarded as a genuine triumph. Other ranges are cast iron and are brittle; the Home Comforts are made of malleable iron which combines all the qualities of durability and strength that are sought for in articles of this kind. There are now nearly 5,000 Home Comfort ranges in use, and the most prominent people in the city are patrons of this factory and attest the superiority of these ranges. The Wrought Iron Range Company's popularity is widespread, and its displays at the Fair and Exposition will increase its acquaintances.

Cardinal McCloskey.

NEW YORK, October 7.—The condition of Cardinal McCloskey this morning is about the same as last evening.

FEARS FOR FRANCE.

The Result of the Recent Elections Causing Great Excitement.

Prince Hohenlohe on the Situation—The Lesson Taught—The Roumelian Revolution—Premier Salisbury Outlines the Government's Policy in His Speech at Newport To-Day—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, October 7.—The French elections continue to excite the keenest interest here. The general opinion is that the Republic is safe and that the Reactionary advantage is not the sign of a change of Republican for Conservative principles, but an indication of protest against the Ferry policy in Tunis, Tonquin and Madagascar, and proof only that the French democracy decline to be dragooned by those Republicans lately in office. No danger is to be apprehended from the conjunction of the Bonapartists and Royalists. These factions are powerless through jealousies, whenever an attack on the Republic approaches maturity. The lesson taught by the elections, if well learned, will only place the republic on a surer foundation. The electioneerers and wire-pullers now have a chance of learning that in universal suffrage France declared its own independence, and that the honest operation of the scrutin de liste smashed the Opportunists between the Radicals and Reactionaries. It is that the result of the elections is not regarded in England nearly so seriously as in France. The Republique Francaise says there is but one remedy. The Union Nationale says the result of fifteen years' patient work has been compromised in a few hours. The Standard's correspondent is confident that there will be bloodshed in the streets of Paris. Rochefort's remedy is to guillotine Ferry. There are other causes besides the blunders of a foreign policy and especially the depression of trade, which we in England are finding exerts a dangerous political influence. The voters' only method of protesting, too, was by voting the hostile lists.

A CURIOUS FACT

THE POLITICAL EXCITEMENT.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, October 7.—At the first test of it the big gun, "scrutin de liste," has exploded at the breech and everybody is filled with excitement of some sort, either of alarm or elation at the startling result. It is beginning to be possible to get at the meaning of the elections at this distance, but the too eager minds of the Parisians are unable to hold themselves down to the task. One side is ready to despair of the Republic, and the other is ready to throw his hat in the air and shout, "Vive le Roi!" In reality both are equally ridiculous. The Republic has not been hurt in the least. Philippe is not one step nearer his shadowy throne. The fact is the existence of the Republic was not in question. Nowhere did a Reactionary nominee venture to assail the Republic as such, or advocate a monarchy. That which has taken place is simply the crushing overthrow of a cabal of politicians who were making the Republic a synonym for selfish and unscrupulous adventure. The unexpected and sweeping gains that have been made are due to an abhorrence of the Tonquin and Madagascar episodes to a reaction against the persecution of the priests, and to the anger caused by the frightful financial burdens that have been imposed. It is a chastening and

NOT A REVOLUTION.

What danger there is in the new situation lies in the inability of any group to control the Chamber, and the difficulty of the fusion of any two groups on a common action, or a common Ministry. Already there is talk of the necessity of a speedy dissolution, but in the meanwhile, M. Clemenceau is expected to attempt the impossible. Certainly he is the only figure which looms up, and the current of events is likely to be largely his way, unless the enraged Opportunists should throw their strength to the Reactionaries, which is considered a possible thing. The chief concern to America is that the new Chamber will be fiercely protective. Many Orleanist gains in the rural districts are due to the pledges made to vigorously exclude American grain, pork and breadstuffs, and these forced other parties to compete with similar pledges. It is regarded as certain that there will be an almost prohibitive tariff, whatever else happens. There is still deep and noisy excitement, but no riots of importance are likely to occur before the 18th, at least.

PRINCE HOHENLOHE INTERVIEWED.

LONDON, October 7.—The Times to-day publishes an interview its Paris correspondent had yesterday with Prince Hohenlohe, the German Ambassador to France, respecting the recent elections for members of the Chamber of Deputies. Prince Hohenlohe said: "In my opinion the only possible way under the circumstances to form a stable government is by a union of the two Republican sections of the Chamber, as I am afraid the Radical Left minority will not defer to the desires of the Moderate Left majority regarding governmental measures." Europe has hitherto been enabled to live on good terms with the French republic, but the republic of to-morrow may differ from the republic of yesterday. If the Conservatives use their comparative victory solely in the interest of the country, they may easily contribute towards maintaining, or even improving, the relations of France with the rest of Europe. If, however, they should use their increased forces to disturb the situation and call into question the established order of things, France would enter into a period of troubles and agitation and would require the closest watching by foreign statesmen. Every oscillation in France at the present moment makes a sensible difference in the political calculations which now occupy the attention of Europe."

The Roumelian Revolution.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, October 7.—The delay in making known the decision of the ambassadors arises from the warlike attitude of Servia, the obstacles raised by the Porte and the demands of Russia. Servia has decided definitely to fight if the extension of Bulgaria is recognized. Restoration of the status quo and the occupation of the Balkan garrisons by Turkish troops. Russians admit that the failure to garrison the Balkans and the faits accompli, have created a new situation, necessitating the occupation of the disputed territory to secure the fruits of Russian's sacrifices in 1877-78.

If Turkish troops are to move into Roumelia, England, Austria and Italy propose to indicate a note to Turkey and Bulgaria, advising the settlement of all questions by the Great Powers. The concert of Europe will therefore be maintained, unless premature action by Servia, Bulgaria or Turkey should force a conflict. Military activity continues on both sides of the Balkans.

MILITARY ACTIVITY.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, October 7—In the Balkans great preparations and great silence are the order of the day. Constantinople is shaken by military activity. From Belgrade comes news that the last of the Reserves has been called out, and military surgeons have gone to the frontier of Old Servia. There is the greatest activity in the navy yards at Salamis. The foreign correspondents believe that Bismarck has not yet made up his mind, but Russia, needing all her men and money for Asiatic schemes, will co-operate fully with Germany. The Powers are expected not only to sanction the Bulgarian unity, but also authorize Turkey to suppress any other attempt at extension of territory.

SERVIA DETERMINED.

BELGRADE, October 7.—King Milan, at a meeting of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, declared that in the event of the union between Bulgaria and Roumelia being recognized by the Powers, Servia would fight unless her demands for an extension of territory were granted.

England.

SALISBURY AT NEWPORT.

LONDON, October 7.—Lord Salisbury spoke at the National Conservative Conference at Newport to-day. He thanked the Conservative Union for exposing the true nature of the gaudy promises of the seductive programme of the Liberals. The Premier urged his hearers to continue their efforts in behalf of Conservatism, which, he said, was growing and had a glorious future.

THE POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Lord Salisbury then proceeded to enunciate the policy of the Conservative party. Referring to the disturbances in the Balkans, the Premier said: "It is no part of the duty of British statesmen to interfere in the affairs of Eastern Roumelia. The Berlin treaty has not been frustrated, nor has the San Stefano treaty been restored. The policy of the Government is to uphold the Turkish Empire, and wherever it is possible to do so, genuinely and healthily, to uphold, cherish and foster strong self-sustained nationalities who have an important bearing on the future of Europe. For the present I have hopes that the Powers will confine the disturbance within the limits of the Roumelian territory. Russian influence would have checked the political growth of Roumelia if the latter had united with Bulgaria in 1878." He favored a great change in the present measures for local self-government. To decentralize authority in London was an indispensable part of the new Government's policy. People having wealth should bear the burden of expense of the country, not alone those having houses and lands. The Premier, in answering a question as to what extent local Government authority should be extended to Ireland, said, "The extension might give more facility to the majority to do justice to the minority." Conservative traditions, he said, were clear. He regarded the integrity of the Empire above all other political considerations. He favored the Imperial federation movement, but his plans in regard to the matter had not been tangibly shaped.

CLOSE UNION OF ENGLAND AND HER COLONIES.

He believed in a close union of England and her colonies, with a view of proving the real strength of the nation in European councils, and said it was one of the most important questions of the future. He favored a measure for cheapening and simplifying the sale and transfer of land. He stated that the Government had received returns showing that general crime in Ireland had decreased, and boycotting was amenable to the ordinary law, which would be sternly enforced. Thirty-five prosecutions, he said, had already been started. Extending self-government to Ireland, he declared, is an open question, but it is desirable, as far as possible, to give Ireland the same benefits as are enjoyed by the rest of the United Kingdom.

New Zealand.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

LONDON, October 7.—The New Zealand Government has renewed the mail service between New Zealand and San Francisco. The Union Line of steamers will carry the mails via Sidney and New Auckland to Honolulu, and the Oceanic Line will carry them between Honolulu and San Francisco. The Governments of New South Wales and America will contribute their shares of the subsidy necessary for keeping the service in operation.

The Cholera.

IN PALERMO.

ROME, October 7.—There were 105 new cases of cholera and sixty deaths from the disease reported yesterday in Palermo.

The Dominion.

CANADIAN PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

OTTAWA, ONT., October 7.—It is stated on the very best authority that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will immediately begin an extension of its telegraph lines throughout the Dominion, for which power is given it by act of Parliament. It is understood that it has given a large order for wire and will complete its connection with the telegraph system of the United States. In this case the Canadian Pacific will become a formidable rival of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, which now enjoys a monopoly.

BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE.

ORANGEVILLE, ONT., October 7.—A dastardly attempt was made early this morning to blow up, by dynamite, the residences of Police Magistrate Monroe and Provincial Constable Anderson. Both houses were badly wrecked, but the inmates escaped unhurt. The cause of the outrage appears to be the commencement of prosecutions against violators of the Scott Temperance act by these officials. No arrests have yet been made.

The Soudan.

OSMAN DIGNA'S DERVISHES DEFEATED.

CAIRO, October 7.—Official advices have been received from Ras Alula, the commander of the Abyssinian expedition marching to the relief of the beleaguered garrison at Kassala, to the effect that, after a severe battle, the Abyssinians defeated a large force of dervishes under Osman Digna, and that 3,000 dervishes were killed in an encounter. The Abyssinian general is now rapidly advancing on Kassala.

Ireland.

THE DAVITT LAND SYSTEM AGITATION.

DUBLIN, October 7.—The Davitt land system agitation in Ireland increases daily. "Moonlighters" are forcing farmers to swear that they will not pay their rents. Several farmers were waited upon by "Moonlighters" last night and compelled to take an oath to that effect.

THE STEPHENS FUND.

The fund for the benefit of James Stephens, the ex-Fenian Head Center, amounts to only £1,600, and his friends are greatly disappointed at the meagreness of the subscriptions.

"Buck's Brilliant" biscuits: none baked so nicely as those. When at the Fair try one.

THE ST. LOUIS POSTMASTERSHIP.

An Interview With Postmaster-General Vilas—Washington News.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7.—In an interview with Postmaster-General Vilas to-day he informed your correspondent that the St. Louis Postmastership was still in statu quo, but that it was among the questions that were under immediate consideration, and might be decided at any moment. In reply to the question if any new candidates had entered the field within the last week or ten days, he said there had been, but declined to give their names.

"Is the fight a bitter one, or is it a good-natured contest?"

"Well, the competition is very sharp," said the Postmaster-General, with a smile, "but I think we will be able to make a selection that will be acceptable to the people of St. Louis. This is all the information I can give you on the subject at this time."

The Silver Cargo.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7.—The transfer of the silver cargo of the United States steamers Swatara and Yantic, amounting to 10,400,000 in standard silver dollars, to the United States Treasury, was completed to-day. The coin will be counted in a few days. It is believed, however, that it has been safely delivered. It is said at the Treasury Department that, owing to the trouble and delay in transporting by water, that railroad transportation only will be employed in the future.

Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7.—The President to-day appointed the following named presidential postmasters: J. C. Gulfox, New Iberia, La., vice Charles Decius, resigned; Thomas H. Langtry, Algona, Iowa, vice Robert H. Spencer, resigned; Andrew J. Shakespeare, Kalamazoo, Mich., vice Lyman M. Gates, commission expired.

The Spanish Mission Filled.

WASHINGTON, D.C. October 7.—The President to-day appointed Jabez L. M. Curry of Virginia, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Spain, vice John W. Foster, resigned.

ERLANGER-LEONARD.

Manager Erlanger Held in $1,000 Bail For Shooting Leonard.

PHILADELPHIA, October 6.—Abraham Erlanger, the theatrical manager, who was arrested last night upon the charge of shooting G. Herbert Leonard, the actor, in the Continental Hotel, was brought before a magistrate this morning. The injured man failed to appear and, without any testimony being offered, the defendant was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing on next Wednesday.

Mr. Leonard, the victim of last night's shooting, was able to walk away from the Hospital this morning.

A Drummer Done Up.

Patrolman Wilson reported yesterday that he found George Smith, a traveling salesman, in a stupefied condition on the corner of Seventh and Pine streets. He reported that he had fallen down, the result being a cut about two inches long on the fore head, a broken nose and a closed left eye. He was taken to the Dispensary and thence to the Laclede Hotel.

BISCUITS for all at Buck's Stove and Range Company's Pavilion, Fair Grounds.

ABOUT TOWN.

ONLY four ladies of the Flower Mission were at the rooms this morning, but they sent out a few flowers. For the first time this year neither the President, Mrs. Barnard, nor Mrs. Cooker, the Secretary, was present.

HENRY BOLD, residing at 220 Quincy street, reported to the police this morning that his wife had left home some time during the night. She has been sick for the past nine months from malarial fever, and is supposed to have committed suicide.

A WARRANT was issued this morning for the arrest of Mrs. Louise Heilman, wife of C. H. Heilman, 2520 N. Twenty-third street, on a charge of cruelty to a child. Mrs. Heilman is charged with cruelly abusing the child and last night thrusting her out into the cold in a filthy condition.

ABOUT 7 o'clock last evening an Indian, who calls himself White Buffalo and claims to have been with a show which collapsed in Indiana, got off one of the incoming trains at Union Depot and was wandering around aimlessly when Mr. J. E. Decker of Texas took him in charge and will see that he is cared for.

DR. SHELP, of Sixth and Olive street, had his pockets relieved of a pocket-book containing $25 on an Olive street car, near Fourteenth street last night. This was the only case of pocket-picking reported last night, but the police have run in forty-eight crooks on general principles, twenty-one of whom were identified as professional thieves. The crooks arrested during the week will be sent to the First District Police Court Friday morning.

Chicago and Alton.

The Chicago and Alton Railroad will run two special trains to-morrow evening, leaving Union Depot for Bloomington at 11 p. m., and for Jacksonville at 11 p. m.

THE THIRD DAY.

Increased Attendance at the Fair This Morning.

Scenes and Incidents on the Grounds—The Amphitheater—Awards—Notes and Gossip.

Even the street car strike, which was inaugurated yesterday afternoon, failed to affect the attendance at the Fair Grounds to-day, and this has been the largest day of the week, in point of attendance. One result of the strike, however, was that visitors to the Fair were on hand at a much earlier hour than usual, and at 10 o'clock this morning the grounds and the amphitheatre presented a livelier appearance than they did at 2 o'clock on either of the preceding days. The crowd, too, was more of a city one than heretofore, as was evidenced by the number of private conveyances which were called into requisition. It is a very easy matter on the grounds to distinguish our country cousin from his city relative, as the former invariably makes a bee-line for the animal cages immediately on entering the gate, while the "city folks" go at once to the various departments.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the management of the association for the perfect order in which all the departments are arranged this year, and so far there has been no hitch in any quarter. Although this is only the third day, the awarding committees in the various departments found their work laid out in such precise order that the assigning of the ribbons was a comparatively easy task, and nearly all the awards have been made and the intermingling of the blue, red and yellow ribbons add greatly to the picturesque appearance of the displays.

For the large throng of country visitors who came in on yesterday's train, chiefly to see the Veiled Prophet in all his glory, and who took in the Fair to-day, the agricultural department seemed to be the chief point of interest, and that section devoted to the display of farming implements and machinery was crowded all day. The mechanical department and the textile hall also had their full quota. In the afternoon the race track was the great lodestone and the grand stand to-day had more occupants than at any time since it was built.

The promenade concerts of Pryor's St. Joseph band were highly relished by the numerous grays and a small sized parade followed in its wake wherever it went. It was curious to notice the remarkable patience displayed by the throngs which surrounded the baking powder exhibits where hot biscuits are given away. People would come and stand for half an hour at a time to get the tiny morsel, and when at last they were successful, the pleasing, self-satisfied expressions on the faces showed how much good biscuits are appreciated.

Some of the dresses worn by the country lady visitors are no less remarkable than the exhibits on the grounds themselves. Two fair ladies from the interior this morning attracted as much attention as Sitting Bull himself, and for the benefit of our city belles a description, such as a reporter who knows nothing about ladies' dress can give, is here given: The maidens in question were attired in bright scarlet basques and skirts. These were trimmed with a three-inch border of black velvet. In addition they wore bright sky-blue shawls, fastened to the waist a la fedora front. To cap the climax their broad-brimmed straw hats were trimmed with a broad band of white mull. These costumes were very patriotic, to say the least.

Notes.

The drum-major of Pryor's band is a "toff."

The cattle judges have their hands full all day.

The monkey cage is the favorite resort for country visitors.

The wild, untamed Indian in his variegated robes is a curiosity.

"How did you get out?" was the stereotyped inquiry to-day.

The members of the Atchison Flambeau Club visited the Fair to-day.

The favorite pedestrian route down town is via Grand avenue and Pine street.

The amphitheater had a permanent fringe of cattle all around the outside rails.

There were some magnificent specimens of Norman and Percheron horses exhibited yesterday.

Hanging on by the eyelids was exemplified to-day on the street cars running to the Fair Grounds.

"Yow! yow! yow!" uttered in a frantic tone of voice seems to make trotting horses simply scoot.

The V. P. brought the country man in yesterday and those who secured accommodations came out to-day.

The Cake Awarding Committee was the observed of all observers and was watched by an envious crowd of young ladies.

Capt. Bogardus astonishes all visitors with his exhibitions of shooting. The marksmanship of his sons is also remarkable.

The amount of complaints that the superintendents of the various departments had to endure from exhibitors who got no ribbons was simply appalling.

In the Wool Department the Illinois exhibitors came near being left, as their exhibits of wool were thrown about so recklessly that the judges only succeeded in finding them at the last moment.

J. I. Case, the owner of the celebrated trotters, J. I. C. and Phallas, was an interested spectator at the pagoda yesterday. Mr. Case thinks the new race track is the equal of any in the country.

In the Osage Stakes, for two year-olds, at the Race Track yesterday, the Kentucky colt, Nutbreaker, won. The purse race for 2:25 horses was undecided after six heats and was postponed until to-day.

"I think that committee was real mean not to give me a premium on my cocoanut cake," said a pretty young lady to Adrian Dozier. He coincided with her and was careful not to let her know that he was one of the judges.

In the mule race yesterday Colonel Jim Hailey acted as one of the judges, and at the conclusion insisted that his mule had "jumped every hurl" and should receive second money. The other judges informed him, however, that, in addition to jumping every hurdle, his mule should have come in ahead of the successful animal.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

The English Yacht Galatea to Try Next Season to Win the American Trophy.

NEW YORK, October 7.—Mr. Beavor-Webb said last night that the Galatea will certainly come over here next season to race for the America's Cup. The challenge has already been placed with the New York Yacht Club, and it only remains for the Club to name the time when the races shall be sailed. In the language of Beavor-Webb, the Galatea "is a far handsomer and abler ship" than the Genesta. Still he admits that he has not much hope of her winning the cup. Mr. Beavor-Webb will sail for England this morning.

The Genesta will not sail until to-morrow, as there was so much rain yesterday she could not bend her sails, and therefore she cannot be got ready to sail to-day. She will probably be laid up next season. It is said now that Mr. Beavor-Webb was willing to take $25,000 instead of $30,000 for her, but Osborn would not give more than $20,000, as his wife did not want him to buy a cutter. It is said by a competent judge that the Genesta would probably not bring more than $12,500 on the other side of the water.

MARY ANDERSON.

Return of the American Actress From Her European Tour.

English Photographers Not as Good as Ours—The Actress Sea Sick—Miss Anderson Solicitous About Her Welcome Home—Her English Company—An Interesting Chat.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 7.—In an interview with your correspondent Mary Anderson said that some one had asked if she had posed for a photograph recently. "Oh, yes," she replied, "but those English photographers are so slow and take so long to adjust the camera. Our Americans," she added in a lively way, "go click, click, and in a second it is over." Mr. Abbey suggested that she go down stairs and sign the customs papers. She went down to the long table where all the passengers were waiting in line. "Miss Anderson will be next," said the official, frowning at the man to whom that place really belonged. She sat down and looked over the blank. "I don't know how many boxes there are," she said petulantly; "where is the man who has the list?"

Five minutes were expended hunting up the "man." She looked over the list and volunteered the information that there were thirty boxes and three baskets. Then she signed her name twice and went on deck "I got up at 5 o'clock," she remarked, "and went on deck to enjoy the view. I must tell you how sea sick we all were. Every member of the company was sick. The sea was terribly rough. I called it riding across on the rail, don't you know, because we all patronized the rail so much." Then she laughed and everybody laughed.

"My room was right next to an officer's, and the partition between was very thin. The officer told me that he used to hear me say to my maid, when I was so sick: 'Bartol, oh, Bartol! Why can't the ship sink?'"

As she said this she spoke in deep ghostly tones and made a heavy stage strut. "There was poor Mr. Falls. He was the sickest man in the lot, and when I went to see how he was getting along and ask him some questions, he just leaned his head on his hand and said: 'Leave me; leave me, and let me die. I am not Pygmalion.' The Gallia rolls so dreadfully that I was sorry we did not take the Etruria, although some one says it rolls worse than this boat."

"I heard you are fond of the sea, Miss Anderson," said the reporter, looking at a green book in her hand.

"Oh, this is not Dickens; this is Vanity Fair. I like Thackery much better, and read him over and over. No, I didn't adorn Dickens' bust with flowers, as has been reported, nor was I in Shakspeare's tomb. By the way," she continued, "is it true that Americans are down on me for bringing an English company here?"

The reporter suggested that merit only was appreciated in this country, and that if her company was what it was reputed to be the audiences would appreciate them.

"I am so glad to hear it," she went on. "I think my company is the best I ever had, and I hope there will be no unjust prejudice."

"What do you know about New York?" she asked turning to her leading man.

"Oh, don't you know all Englishmen have heard of Broadway, Wall street and Fifth avenue."

"You do know something about us, don't you?" she continued.

"Then, where do we land?" she asked the reporter.

"At about the foot of Eighth street."

"Then we are quite up town, and I shan't have so far to ride through the dismal rain. I want to get

I shall be so busy for a week that I cannot see anyone or do anything. My dearest Boston friend can't be with me, because her daughter is sick."

"Miss Anderson," said the reporter solemnly, "does it occur to you that you return here quite the foremost of American women?" The actress turned with a startled look, blushed and looked back out through the Narrows toward the sea. "Is that so?" she mused. Then she laughed merrily and remarked, "That being the case, although I don't believe it, I must comport myself with great dignity." All the while she kept her maid running back and forth, getting this thing and that, until all the gentlemen around had something to carry for her. She threw her ulster over the reporter, gave him her dainty silk umbrella for his left hand, and thrust a well worn portmanteau in his right.

"Does this portmanteau contain all your valuables?" he asked.

"Not quite, but you mustn't carry it off, because I use it as a weapon of defense." Then she took it in one hand and hit the rail with it. "I hear that poor John McCullough is dying," she said. "It is one of the saddest things I know of. He was one of our greatest tragedians."

Mr. Abbey approached. "The customs officials have volunteered to examine our baggage first," he said.

"That is very kind of them. Let us proceed to that disagreeable duty at once." There was little trouble, and Miss Anderson bore the ordeal calmly. She was asked if she had any new engagements to report. She laughed. "Who was the last one?" she inquired. "Really, I am reported engaged so often and to so many people that I am quite bewildered. You can say that my latest is for the American tour." Then she turned and tripped down the plank, rewarding the eager crowd below with a smile, but holding Mr. Abbey to his promise of protection and hurrying to the hotel.

BUNGLING BURGLARS.

Valuable Jewels Stolen from Admiral Baldwin Recovered by Farm Hands.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEWPORT, R. I., October 7.—On the night of Saturday, September 12, the fashionable quarter was startled by the discovery that expert burglars had entered "Snug Harbor," the summer residence of Admiral Charles H. Baldwin, United States Navy, and stole valuables to the amount of many hundreds of dollars. Upon the evening in question the Admiral was giving a dinner to a large number of guests, and when Mrs. Baldwin had dressed and descended to meet her guests, she left her jewel case unlocked. In half an hour the servants heard a noise upstairs and upon investigating found that Mrs. Baldwin's bureau had been ransacked. The thief had left, as he entered, through the second-story window. The property stolen comprised two gold watches, one studded with diamonds and the other richly enameled and engraved, and a valuable set of rings, and costly diamond pins and heirlooms, which were very highly prized. The police made an investigation, but nothing came of it.

Last night while Admiral and Mrs. Baldwin were at dinner their butler told them two farm hands from out of town

DEMANDED TO SEE THEM.

The Admiral thought the request a strange one, but went out to meet them, and then he had placed in his hands a box containing every article that was stolen, save a purse which contained $25. The Admiral's astonishment was only surpassed by his delight. The men work on the farm of Mr. Smith of Portsmouth, which adjoins the line of the railroad. They said that on Sunday morning last they saw a man acting as if searching for something, while out in the meadows. They asked him what he was doing and he said he was a Boston detective sent down to look for a watch. The farm hands passed on and later saw the man digging. This aroused their suspicions and on going towards him he walked off and has not since been seen. The men have recognized a portrait shown them by the police as the same man. When he was away, they continued the search and after some time unearthed a box containing the jewelry. From the description they learned that it was Admiral Baldwin's. The Admiral gave them $100.

A SKATING RINK ROMANCE.

The Victim of a Skatorial Professor Brings Him to Terms.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 7.—A decided, young and etty girl, who said her name was Kittie Murdo, ed before Justice Otto at Newark yesterday and told a story of wrong and seduction through the fascinating pedal evolutions of a roller rink skatorial professor. She was 18 years old, and resided with her parents at 16 Wickliffe street. Some months ago she visited the Caledonian Skating Rink, and there met Prof John Hewston, whose winning ways and gallantry in loaning her his silver-mounted patent skates, and whose readiness to pick her up when she fell won her admiration and eventually her love. He won her affections, and persuaded her to leave her home and live with him as his wife. For two short sweet months they enjoyed each other's society, and then the trouble began. The skater began to abuse her, and finally compelled her to return to her parents. She told them all, and was forgiven and pitied, and they urged her to appeal to the law; Justice Otto issued a warrant for the Professor's arrest, and he was found by a constable at his house yesterday morning. On being brought before the court he expressed his sorrow, and offered to marry the girl. While the proper papers were being filled out it was discovered that the youth was but 20 years old, and it was necessary to have his father's consent. The lovers were parted, he going to a cell, and his would-have-been wife to her home Later the boy's father appeared, and gave his consent to the marriage. The couple were married in Justice Otto's best style, and left the court smiling and cooing. Kittie turned as she reached the door and said to the Justice, "I'm going to keep him away from the rinks, you can just bet," and she looked as if she would fulfill her word.

THE TALISMANO.

A Wrecked Italian Bark Caught in a Revolving Hurricane.

The Terrible Trip of the Bark—At the Pumps for Forty-Eight Hours—Frightful Outbursts of Wind—Kept Afloat by a Cargo of Lumber—The Crew Rescued by the German Bark Louisa and Augusta.

NEW YORK, October 7.—Captain Oanglio and thirteen officers and seamen of the wrecked Italian bark Talismano arrived here yesterday on the German bark Louisa and Augusta, by which they were rescued about 750 miles east of Sandy Hook on September 29. Captain Oanglio said yesterday at the Italian Consul's office: "We were forty-eight days out from Pensacola, bound to Port Glasgow, England, and on September 23 the bark sprung a leak. We managed to keep the vessel comparatively free from water for four days, until we were

CAUGHT IN A REVOLVING HURRICANE,

or cyclone. The outbursts of wind were frightful, and came from all points of the compass. The sea rose to a fearful height, so that we were not only in danger of having our masts twisted out, but feared that we should be swamped by the seas. The leak increased, and for forty-eight hours the men worked at the pumps to keep the vessel afloat, while the unbroken volumes of seas swept the length of the deck, threatening to carry everything before them. Finally the gale broke, but our vessel was

IN A SINKING CONDITION,

and our only hope was in being rescued. The bark Louisa and Augusta were sighted about 9 a. m. last Tuesday, and she answered our signals of distress. At noon she was only about 200 feet from us, but the weather was so rough that to attempt to lower a small boat would be dangerous, and as our only alternative was to attempt to rescue ourselves, we put off in our long boat, and in a few moments were on deck of the German bark. Our own vessel was a perfect wreck, and was only kept afloat by her cargo of lumber."

An Extensive Clothing Establishment at Nevada, Mo., Destroyed by Fire.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEVADA, MO., October 7.—Fire at 2 o'clock this morning destroyed the magnificent clothing house of Huff & Simon. The Fire Department was promptly on hand and confined the fire to this building alone, though situated in the middle of the block. The loss on the stock is about $35,000; insurance, $25,000. The building was owned by Harry C. Moore, and was fully insured. The store of the Harry C. Moore Dry Goods and Carpet Company was damaged by water $3,000, and is fully insured. The fire is supposed to have originated from a stove in the tailor shop over Huff & Simon's store.

JACK BERESFORD.

The Scion of a Noble English Family On the American Stage.

Young Jack Hollis' Exploits in Paris and Adventures in America—Living Quietly as a Gentleman After Leading a Gay Life in Gotham.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 7.—Few of the Democratic citizens of Jersey City are aware that a veritable scion of English nobility is among them, and resident Angiomaniacs will grieve when they learn that the illustrious gentleman will depart to-night, perhaps forever, without being proferred the courtesies usually extended to distinguished strangers. Jack Beresford, as he is called by his intimate friends, is the only son of the youngest member of the well-known Beresford family, which boasts among its ancestry the notorious Marquis of Waterford, whose escapades were not confined to the Old Country alone, but who experienced particular attention at the hands of the New York police many years ago, when he tried to paint the city red. Among other well-known members of the house are Lord Charles, Lord Marcus and Lord William Beresford, who, while bearing the reputation of the "wildest boys" in the English peerage, have proved themselves equal to the "best and bravest," both on land and sea. In all recent wars in which England has been embroiled the Beresfords have received the thanks of the Queen and her Parliament for military and naval services. The Hollis branch settled in Kent, being poorer than their old brethren, and the senior members adopted the church as a profession, following the example of the great Archbishop Beresford, who was a noted figure in English history at the close of the last century. Young Jack Hollis, upon leaving Oxford, went to London to study law, but was soon drawn into the vortex of society and plunged into every kind of gaiety and frivolity with all the impetuosity of youth. His losses and successes on the turf were as changeable as his affection and he finally disappeared from view to escape the penalty for inducing another young blood to fight a duel, whose parents influenced the authorities on his behalf. The next heard of this gallant youth was an intrigue with a certain Parisian beauty, which caused her dissipated but wealthy husband to threaten to shoot the young lothario. Hollis was yet young, being but 20 years of age, handsome, brave and adventurous. Finding the gay city of Paris, where he had becoming too warm for him, he returned to England, vowing reformation and determined to adopt the stage—that refuge of impoverished sons of the English aristocracy. About this time several well-known noblemen did likewise, a brother of Lord Sefton, Sir Randal Roberts and others among the number. Lord Hollis made his debut at the Princess of Wales' Theater, Liverpool, in "Ours," scoring a success. After several months, during which he was devoted to the stage, he came into possession of a little property by the death of a relative and determined to come to America. He arrived in New York about three years ago and was received with open arms by other exiled noblemen, and the aristocratic residents of Murray Hill, and living in luxurious apartments at the Windsor and other hotels, his expenses were a trifle beyond his income and he was compelled to part, acre by acre, with the "green fields" to which he had fallen heir. He was responsible for the introduction of the English style of dress and living more than any other English importation, and his clothes were copied by Berry Wall, young Tilden and others whom he patronized. In a little time he had parted with his last hundred, and he resolved to quit fashion and return to the stage. His deportment and address soon procured him engagements in several traveling companies, which in several cases proved short lived. Hard luck followed him until he joined one of the "Private Secretary" companies, in which he was successful as Harry Marsland. This season he was especially engaged by Henry Chanfrau to play the part of the English swell in "Kit" and he everywhere, few being aware that he was the genuine article. Last week the company played at Niblo's, and the profession were surprised at the commendatory criticizing he received. Since Monday night he has played at the Jersey City Academy, and the POST-DISPATCH correspondent called on him there last night. When questioned concerning his impressions and intentions, Lord John Beresford Hollis invited the reporter into his dressing-room, which was littered with the usual amount of apparel which Englishmen are apt to affect. "Deah boy," he said, with a drawl, "for heaven's sake say nothing about me. I am trying to live quietly as an American gentleman. It's really unfair, you know, old chappie. I have been deuced well treated here, and I am well satisfied. Forgotten all about London, ye know; ha, ha, good-by." Nothing would induce him to speak about himself. While a resident in New York Hollis was implicated in several club quarrels, and after he had abandoned his swell friends and began to spend his evenings in well-known beer halls and other Bohemian resorts, he became a dread to any tough who dared to insult his friends. Three months ago a stage hand, who alleged that Hollis had "mashed" a chorus girl with whom the theater attache was in love, was soundly thrashed on Broadway by Hollis. The spectators applauded the pluck of the young nobleman, who is about 5 feet 6 inches in height, and slender in build. Since then he has been let severely alone.

LED A DELIGHTFUL LIFE,

MADE A HIT

WE WISH TO CALL YOUR SPECIAL

Attention to Our Department for Making Boys' Clothing to Order.

We have had considerable experience in this branch of the Merchant Tailoring business, and can guarantee satisfactory garments in every particular.

In order to induce many parents (who are in the habit of buying Ready-made Clothing) to patronize our Establishment, we shall make our prices so reasonable that all can afford to have their boys well dressed.

Yours Respectfully,
MILLS & AVERILL,
S. E. Cor. Broadway and Pine.

A SUBSTITUTE SUCCEEDS.

The Prohibition Conference Refuses to Call a State Convention.

The resolution introduced in the Prohibitionists' convention yesterday by Hon. A. F. Butts, looking to the calling of a state convention to harmonize the two wings of the party was fully explained in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH. No further action was taken on it until late in the day, when the Secretary, J. H. Hendricks, introduced a substitute, which caused Mr. Butts to withdraw his original resolution. No action was taken upon the substitute until this morning, when at 10 o'clock the conference assembled again in the basement of the First Christian Church with only eight persons present, including Chairman Watson, Secretary Hendricks, Ben Deering, Hon. A. T. Butts, of Springfield, Mrs. L. A. Ellis, president of the West End W. C. T. U., and Mr. L. L. Richmond. After devotional exercises, led by Rev. Wm. E. Hall, pastor of the church, the substitute was brought up for consideration. It differs from the resolutions in place of which it was moved by taking the matter of calling a convention out of the people's hands and placing it in the power and discretion of the State Executive Committee, which is instructed to invite the Brooks or Kansas City Committee to a conference to adjust existing differences and "harmonize themselves into one party," the conditions being that the united organization shall be formed in harmony with the National party and that the two existing committees shall cease to exist thereafter. The intention of the original resolutions was to provide not simply for a committees' meeting but for a gathering of State prohibitionists, and it will be observed how completely opposed to this idea the substitute motion was. However, it was put to a vote, and the handful of people present voted with as great importance as though the room was full. When the roar of ayes had subsided and the negative had been called, the substitute was found to have been unanimously carried. Ben Deering had dropped in just before the vote, but did not vote either way. The conference then listened to a lengthy report from L. L. Richmond, and deferred the reading of communications until the afternoon session. At 12 o'clock the meeting adjourned until 2 p. m. The most important part of the Conference having been accomplished by its passage of the substitute resolution this morning, there remains little to do but the arranging of plans for organizing the state. A prominent temperance worker was seen by a POST-DISPATCH reporter after the vote on the resolution, and said: "This action will amount to nothing, as the Brooks committee will certainly call a State convention of Prohibitionists at Moberly or some other town, and proceed to organize the counties in the State. It is not at all reasonable to suppose that they will be deterred from any action by any resolution passed in a meeting of temperance folks who were not only less than a dozen in number, but were also in no sense the representative temperance men of the State."

ATHLETIC PARADE.

The Attraction For Citizens and Visitors This Evening.

Arrival of the Atchison Flambeau Club—Description of Their Novel March and Drill, as It Will Be Seen To-Night—Route of the Parade—The Celebration at Schnaider's.

All arrangements are now perfected for the grand athletic parade which takes place to-night in connection with the return of the champion Brown Stockings from the East. The celebrated Atchison Flambeau Club arrived this morning at Union Depot. There are one hundred young business men of Atchison in the party, and they are all prepared to make a great show. The Flambeau Club's march and drill is something never seen here before and has been exciting great attention. The men, dressed in white duck, with white helmets and black belts and buttons, will cover two squares of the parade when marching. They will be led by twelve men carrying spears and in full armor, who will be followed by forty men, each bearing a flambeau. These flambeaus comprise an important feature. By a simple wave of the hand a stream of flame can be thrown from each thirty feet long. The flambeau will be in constant use on the line of march. Following the flambeau men will come fifteen more, whose duty it will be to discharge rockets, bombs and other pieces of firework. It should be stated that the flambeau men also carry fireworks in bags, so that at times the whole club indulges in a general display of pyrotechnics. The club will burn in to-night's street parade, and at Schnaider's Garden, over $1,000 worth of fireworks, in addition to the flambeau show. The club will drill all along the streets and will light up the route with dazzling brilliancy, and will make a sight seldom seen in St. Louis. The details of the parade are as follows:

The Parade.

The fifth division will form on Pine, west of Twelfth, with right resting on Twelfth.

The Start.

Each organization will be in line upon the spot assigned for the formation not later than 7:15 p. m. The parade will move at 7:30 sharp, upon the firing of a signal rocket at Twelfth street and Clark avenue. The first division will move upon the giving of signal, and as the rear of that division passes Walnut street the second division will fall in and each succeeding division will join as the rear of the preceding division passes the street upon which the division rests.

The Route of March.

The route of march is as follows: Starting from Twelfth and Clark avenue, the column will move north on Twelfth to Washington avenue, east on Washington avenue to Fourth, south on Fourth to Clark avenue, west on Clark avenue to Broadway, north on Broadway to Olive, west on Olive to Fourteenth, south on Fourteenth to Pine, west on Pine to Eighteenth, south on Eighteenth, over Tayon avenue bridge, to Chouteau avenue, west on Chouteau avenue to Schnaider's Garden.

The Programme at the Garden.

The programme at Schnaider's Garden embraces selections by the St. Louis Grand Orchestra and a grand display of fireworks and drill by the Atchison Flambeau Club (100 strong); address of welcome to the champions of 1885-6 by Chester H. Krum; response by Hon. John J. O'Neill; addresses by Hon. D. P. Dyer, Hon. James J. Lindley and others. A grand banquet and fireworks will conclude the entertainment. The feature will be the drill of the Flambeau Club, the men showing all the fancy movements in the drill.

The Champions Will Play To-morrow.

The St. Louis Browns and the Cincinnati Club will play an exhibition game at Sportsman's Park to-morrow afternoon. The great Tony Mullane will pitch for the visitors and will give the public an exhibition of what he would have done had he been eligible to play with the Cincinnatis during the championship season. Game will be called at 3 o'clock and the nines will be positioned as follows:

Cincinnati.	Position.	St. Louis Browns.

The Ohio Valley Railroads.

EVANSVILLE, IND., October 7.—Ground was broken this morning at Henderson, Ky., under a contract for constructing the Ohio Valley Railroad, the termini of which are to be Henderson, Ky., and Jackson, Tenn. Twenty-five miles are to be ready for the iron by December 31, 1885, and fifteen miles more by May 1, 1886. The iron and other track material have been purchased.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

News of Interest From the Town Across the River.

Mr. Owens, a member of the First Ward, appeared before 'Squire Shea this morning and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Sophia Carey on a charge of disturbing the peace. Mr. Owens' wife has been confined to her bed for some time, and last night the Cary woman, who, it seems, cherishes some grudge against Mrs. Owens, placed a ladder against the window of the sick woman's room and raising the window began to hurl imprecations at the sufferer. The woman was arrested this morning and will have a hearing this evening.

Joe Wallace, a St. Louis hackman, was arrested last night for not having a license. Wallace had been hired by some parties who attended the Prophet's parade to bring them home, and after leaving them at their residence he was on his way back to the bridge when arrested by one of the night vigilants. He gave sufficient security for his appearance in court and was released.

T. E. Crane, a lawyer from one of the interior towns of the State, got off a train at the Relay Depot last night and started to walk through the city on his way to the bridge, preferring to take this way of reaching the big city than by going through on the train to Union Depot. On his way to the bridge he was considerably struck by the number of saloons he saw, and determined to sample the liquor they kept, for future reference. The consequence was that Mr. Crane did not reach the bridge until precisely 9 o'clock this morning, and before being released from the calaboose had to pay over to 'Squire Keane $20 and costs for being drunk on the streets and carrying concealed weapons.

The trial of Peter Brown, for assaulting Raymond Tayo, was to have taken place last evening in 'Squire Shea's Court, but the complainant was unable to appear, being confined to his bed by the injuries sustained at Brown's hands. Brown is still out on bail.

So far not a single confidence game has been practiced on the unsophisticated countrymen that have come in on trains at the Relay, at least not one has been reported, and the police think that the sharpers who usually ply their vocation on this side of the river during Fair week have kept away.

TIRED OF LIFE.

Suicide of Ex-Private Watchman Garrity This Morning.

At about 9:30 o'clock this morning James Garrity, 48 years old, formerly a private watchman, residing at 1008 S. Second street, shot himself in the left breast at his home, where he lived with his wife and three children. Garrity was a native of Ireland and a member of the Workingmen's Society, in which he is insured. He was conveyed to the City Hospital, where the doctor probed his wound, but was unable to give any opinion of its probable result. The only explanation Garrity gave for his act was that he was tired of life.

THE MAN DIED.

He was not very sick, only a little out of sorts; had a bad taste in his mouth when he rose in the morning; felt as tired in the morning as he did at night; could not eat with a relish; got so he couldn't eat at all for days together; grew sullen and morose; finally death ended his earthly career. If he had taken Smith's Iron Tonic when he first noticed his ill-feelings he might have been alive to-day. Only 50 cents at Williamson's Drug Store.

WOMAN! HER BEST FRIEND!

DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

This famous remedy most happily meets the demand of the age for woman's peculiar and multiform afflictions. It is a remedy for WOMAN ONLY, and for one SPECIAL CLASS of her diseases. It is a specific for certain diseased conditions of the womb, and proposes to so control the Menstrual Function as to regulate all the derangements and irregularities of Woman's

MONTHLY SICKNESS.

Its proprietors claim for it no other medical property; and to doubt the fact that this medicine does positively possess such controlling and regulating powers is simply to discredit the voluntary testimony of thousands of living witnesses who are to-day exulting in the restoration to sound health and happiness.

Bradfield's Female Regulator is strictly a vegetable compound, and is the product of medical science and practical experience directed towards the benefit of SUFFERING WOMAN!

It is the studied prescription of a learned physician whose specialty was WOMAN, and whose fame became enviable and boundless because of his wonderful success in the treatment and cure of female complaints. THE REGULATOR is the GRANDEST REMEDY known, and richly deserves its name:

Woman's Best Friend!

Because it controls a class of functions the various derangements of which cause more ill health than all other causes combined, and thus rescues her from a long train of afflictions which sorely embitter her life and prematurely end her existence. Oh! what a multitude of living witnesses can testify to its charming effects! WOMAN! take to your confidence this

PRECIOUS BOON OF HEALTH!

It will relieve you of nearly all the complaints peculiar to your sex. Rely upon it as your safeguard for health, happiness and long life.

Sold by all druggists. Send for our treatise on the Health and Happiness of Woman, mailed free, which gives all particulars.

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.,
Box 28, Atlanta, G.

DOCTOR WHITTIER

617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.

A Regular Graduate of two medical colleges, has been longer engaged in the treatment of Chronic, Nervous Skin and Blood Diseases than any other physician in St Louis, as city papers show and all old residents know. Consultation at office or by mail, free and invited. A friendly talk or opinion costs nothing. When inconvenient to visit the city for treatment, medicines sent by mail or express everywhere, securely packed, free from observation. Curable cases guaranteed; where doubt exists it is frankly stated. Hours, 8 a. m to 8 p. m. Sunday, 10 to 1.

Nervous Prostration, Debility, Mental and Physical Weakness, arising from Indiscretion, Excess, Exposure or Indulgence, producing some of the following effects: Nervousness, Debility, Dimness of Sight, Perverted Vision, Detective Memory, Pimples on the Face, Aversion to Society of Females, Want of Pleasure in Life, Want of Ambition, Unfitness to Marry, Melancholy, Dyspepsia, Headache, Restlessness, Loss of Spirits, Pains in the Back, etc., are treated with unparalleled success. Safely, privately.

A Permanent Cure Guaranteed.

Blood Impurities and Blood Poisoning, Mercurial and other Affections of Throat, Skin and Bones, Blotches, Eruptions, Old Sores and Ulcers, Painful Swellings,

From whatever cause, positively and forever driven from the system, by means of SAFE, TIME-TESTED REMEDIES. STIFF and SWOLLEN JOINTS, and RHEUMATISM, the result of blood poison, positively cured.

Especial attention to difficult, severe and long standing Cases.

Catarrh, Throat, Nose, Lung Diseases and Constitutional and Acquired Weaknesses Treated successfully.

It is self-evident that a physician paying particular attention to a class of cases attains great skill, and physicians in regular practice all over the country, knowing this, frequently recommend cases to this oldest office in America, where every known appliance is resorted to and the proved good remedies of all ages and countries are used. A whole house is used for office purposes, and all are treated with skill in a respectful manner; and knowing what to do, no experiments are made. On account of the great number of cases applying, the charges are kept low, often lower than is demanded by others. If you secure the skill and get a speedy and perfect life cure that is the important matter.

MARRIAGE GUIDE. 200 PAGES, FINE PLATES.

Elegant cloth and gilt binding. Sealed for 50c in money or postage stamps. Over fifty wonderful pen pictures, true to life; articles on the following subjects: Who may marry, who not, why. Proper age to marry. Who marry first. Manhood; Womanhood; Physical decay; Who should marry. How life and happiness may be increased. Those married or contemplating marriage should read it. It ought to be read by all adult persons, then kept under lock and key. Popular edition, same as above, but paper cover and 200 pages, 25 cents by mail, in money or postage.

To the Public.

In establishing our first factory, we had in view the manufacture of Wrought-Iron Ranges that would more fully supply the demand for something better in the way of a cooking apparatus than the ordinary cast-iron stoves or ranges—ranges that would be suitable and specially adapted for the largest hotels and institutions and for families—but we did not anticipate the very large demand for such a class of goods, and soon found it necessary to increase our manufacturing facilities. Our new factory (19th and Washington Avenue) was erected and equipped with all the improved machinery needed to produce the goods more expeditiously, economically, and more strictly first-class. During our stay in the old factory, and for some months after removing to our new one, we did not feel justified in reducing prices much below those of the ordinary wrought-iron ranges; but the time has now come when we feel that with our facilities we ought to furnish our goods not only below the prices of other wrought-iron ranges, but also very little in advance of any first-class cast-iron stove or range. We have arrived at this conclusion after due deliberation, feeling that our increased sales will more than cover the reduction in prices.

A TERRIBLE JAM.

The Curious Way in Which Fair Visitors Slept Last Evening.

"Every inch of room in this house was taken last night," said a hotel man this morning; "All our chairs were rented out at 50 cents apiece and applicants for bed-comforts were turned away."

"You didn't lease bed-comforts, did you?"

"We did, for a half-dollar a comfort. People wrapped themselves up in them and laid themselves on the floors. I tell you I never saw anything like the crowd that bulged in here from 6 o'clock last evening until after midnight. They were good natured and affable and willing to pay anything to get out of the cold, and we had no trouble in putting hundreds of them on cots, shake-downs and tables."

Every hotel in the city was besieged by a shelter-seeking crowd last night. A great many people who came in on the evening trains never thought of going to a hotel until long after the Veiled Prophet and his splendid train had dissolved themselves into common every-day wheat operators. Then they ranged from one hotel to another, endeavoring to find room to stretch their limbs.

FREEMAN BARNUM,

the newly appointed Collector for St. Louis, was found on the streets at an early hour this morning.

"What's the matter with you?" asked a newspaper owl who was on his way home.

"I'm walking around to keep up my circulation," he answered. "I had to give up my room to a friend of mine this evening and I have no place to sleep."

Mr. Barnum eventually secured a bed, one of his guests having arisen in the night and gone forth on a quest of fireworks, thus leaving him a pallet on which to collect himself.

BASS HENDERSON,

clerk at the Lindell, slept on two chairs for an hour and a half this morning and got up feeling as if he had put in the night on a load of cordwood. "Forty-eight hours without sleep," he said, "and the base-ball brigade to be seen to-night."

The clerks at the Southern were in pretty good form, but at the Laclede and the Planters' the register engineers looked very "rocky," to use their own language. They have no hope of a solid sleep for a week to come, either, as, contrary to all expectations, the transient arrivals who were expected to leave on the morning trains have gone out to the Fair and will be back to-night in greater swarms than ever."

"You may talk about the big hotels being crowded," said a gentleman from the interior, who had to put up last night at a lodging house on Sixth street, "but you ought to see the way the little out-of-the-way hotels are packed. There were six in a bed in the room I was given and four beds in the room. I was waked up in the night by a polite bed fellow who wanted me to take my toe out of his mouth till he could spit."

The small lodging houses are generally sought by those who cannot afford to pay more than 50 cents for their night's shelter, and these last night were jammed. Their illuminated signs adorn old buildings and glimmer faintly above well-lighted saloons, and they attract hundreds of people. A tour among them this morning revealed the fact that they had been crowded with guests to an incredible degree. A good index to the number of people who put up at the principal hotels yesterday is the register of each hotel. A POST-DISPATCH man who went the rounds of the caravansaries this morning found that seventeen pages of arrivals were in the Southern Hotel register for yesterday. The same number of pages were taken up in the St. James Hotel register. The Laclede register had eleven pages of guests for the day and the Lindell twelve. The Planters' had thirteen and Hurst's Hotel fourteen.

Strange to say very few of the visitors object to their close quarters, and they appear to have no fear of a similar experience to-night. There was more than a good business at the various hotels this morning, the arrivals being far more numerous than on any average day. The same rush for shelter and the same bundling away of guests may be expected to-night as was seen last night.

NOT ABANDONED.

A Significant Speech by President Garrett of the Baltimore and Ohio.

PITTSBURG, October 7.—All the prominent officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and a number of invited guests were in the city last night, having made a tour of inspection over the main stem and Pittsburg division. They were entertained at the Duquesne Club, where a banquet was served. President Garrett made a speech and others followed in remarks concerning the relations of the road in this city. It was emphatically stated that the company had no idea of abandoning the construction of the New York line. The party left for the West this morning.

Increased Earnings.

NEW YORK, October 7.—The monthly earnings of railroads for September, 1885, are reported as follows: Indiana, Bloomington and Western, gross earnings, $57,685, an increase over the same month last year of $5,741; Ohio Southern $59,074, an increase of $12,689, and the Peoria, Decatur and Evansville, $78,653, an increase of $7,199.

Rheumatism

Though painful and wearing almost beyond endurance, is not an incurable disease if treated in time. Perhaps no other disease has so baffled the efforts of science and medicine as this, but at last a remedy has been discovered in Tongaline which CURES RHEUMATISM, and is heartily endorsed by many of the Leading Physicians.

WHAT THEY SAY:

"TONGALINE is doing all that is claimed it will do."
G. C. SEIFERT, M. D., Cantrall, Ill.

"Had a case of Inflammatory Rheumatism of nearly all the large joints. Gave TONGALINE, and to-day my patient is out and doing well."
W. W. BAXTER, M. D., Hersman, Ill.

"In my opinion TONGALINE supercedes all other so-called rheumatic remedies."
S. C. WORSHAM, M. D., Marengo, Ill.

"Have given TONGALINE a fair trial, and think it the best remedy I have ever found for Rheumatism."
B. F. DAVIS, Sturgeon, Mo.

BROADWAY AND MORGAN

ALL FOR FIFTY DOLLARS.

End of the Famous Jones County Calf Case in Iowa.

WATERLOO, IOWA, October 7.—The law suit known as the "Jones County Calf Case" has been concluded in the Circuit Court in this city. It was an action brought by Robert Johnson against E. V. Miller and six others, defendants, for $10,000 for malicious prosecution. Eleven years ago John Foreman of Jones County, Iowa, had four calves stolen, and about the same time Robert Johnson, a neighboring farmer, bought some calves for S. D. Potter of Greene County. These calves proved to be the ones stolen from Foreman. Soon after Johnson was prosecuted by the Anti-Horse Thief Association of Jones County for the theft of the calves. He was tried twice and acquitted, and in 1877 brought suit against seven members of the Association for malicious prosecution, alleging that they did not have probable cause for commencing the action. The case has been before the courts ever since and has been tried five times—once at Clinton, once at Vinton and once at Waterloo, and each time, except one, the plaintiff received a verdict running from $8,000 to $7,500, but each time the verdict has been set aside. The jury in this case have awarded $7,000. The costs, attorneys' fees and expenses entailed upon all parties to the litigation growing out of the theft of the calves is estimated at over $20,000, and several prosperous farmers have been rendered bankrupt, while the calves in the first place were not worth over $50.

To Consumptives—Many have been happy to give their testimony in favor of the use of "Wilbor's Pure Cod-Liver Oil and Lime." Experience has proved it to be a valuable remedy for Consumption, Asthma, Diphtheria, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. Manufactured only by A. B. WILBOR, Chemist, Boston. Sold by all druggists.

A FEW short years ago the Miller Pianos were comparatively unknown here, although then, already the favorite piano in the East. Now it ranks here with the oldest, best makes, and is preferred for its lovely tone and great durability

THE MEANEST MAN IN GEORGIA.

A Confederate Bill Contributed to the Grant Monument Fund.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 7.—Drexel, Morgan & Co. received an envelope from Augusta, Ga., yesterday in which were inclosed one of the circulars issued recently by the Grant Monument Association and a $50 Confederate bill. This relic of the past was numbered 23,199, and was dated "Richmond, February 17, 1864." In the center is a vignette of Jeff Davis, habilitated in male attire. Under his instructions the bill was stamped with the humorously illusory promise that "Two years after the ratification of a treaty of peace between the Confederate States and the United States the Confederate States of America will pay to bearer on demand $50." As the contributor of this relic failed to send his name, it is supposed that he does not consider his subscription to have a market value. His surprise will probably be equaled by his chagrin when he learns that the secretary of the Monument Association has already been offered 25 cents for the $50 promise of the "Confederate States of America." This offer has been refused on the ground that there are many men in New York who will be glad to paralyze the meanest man in Georgia by giving something handsome for his bit of waste paper.

A BIG HAUL.

Burglars Secure $8,000 Worth of Diamonds at Newtonville, Mass.

BOSTON, October 7.—A robbery, which occured at Newtonville last Saturday, has just been made public. The property taken was diamond jewelry, which the thieves found in the second story of Ex-Governor Claflin's house on Walnut street, Newtonville. The jewelry taken was valued at over $8,000.

BLIND TOM'S SLAVERY.

An Interesting Suit by the Colored Pianist's Mother Against Gen. Berthune.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

RICHMOND, VA., October 7.—The case of Blind Tom, the colored pianist, known the world over, was up in the United States Circuit Court here yesterday on a motion for the appointment of his mother, Charity Waggins, or some other suitable person, as his guardian. For twenty years Gen. Berthune of this State and his sons have had charge of Tom and have exhibited him everywhere to immense audiences. What Tom has received for his wonderful performances beyond a mere support is not shown by the books. Last year young Berthune was killed and his brother claimed Tom. The widow of the diseased Berthune, with Tom's mother, is trying to get control of Tom. Gen. Berthune and his son and the widow Berthune were in court. The former was represented by Messrs. Berch of Alexandria and the latter by L. R. Hage of this city and Mr. Lowshe of Boston. Hage appeared before the court in behalf of Tom's mother as against the Ber hunes, and charged that it was a case of slavery of the worst kind in a time of entire freedom to every other subject in the United States Government. Tom is held by a decision of an inferior court, and Judges Bond and Hughes will, it is thought, decide against Berthune to-day, when the case will be disposed of.

VISITORS should not fail to see the Budweiser display, at Sixth and Locust; first-class restaurant, etc., attached.

DAVIDSON'S DROP.

The Fatal Fall of a Painter While at Work at Evansville, Ind.

EVANSVILLE, IND., October 7.—In Miller Bros.' building a painter named Charles Davidson was engaged in painting the ceiling of the scond story by electric last night, and, while pushing a board backwards on the trestle, missed his footing and fell through the passenger elevator into the cellar, crushing his head to a jelly, breaking his neck and both jaws. He was about 30 years of age and married, and leaves a widow and mother.

VERY FROSTY.

Killed While Boarding a Train—The Vanderberg Murder Trial—Illinois Items.

CLINTON, October 7.—A heavy frost was reported in this section last night. Similar reports come from Atlanta, Macomb, Marshall and Rockbridge.

QUINCY, October 7.—Ed Mansfield was killed yesterday trying to get on a train in motion.

TOLONO, October 7.—The first coal shaft opened in Champaign County will be completed during the week.

JERSEYVILLE, October 7.—The evidence in the murder case of William Vanderberg, a change of venue from Madison County, was concluded last evening. Vanderberg killed Michael Gibbons in a saloon at Troy.

OLNEY, October 7.—The prisoners made an attempt to break jail last night. They were secured by the guards and heavily ironed.

FLORA, October 7.—Dry murrain has broken out among the cattle in this section.

MATTOON, October 7.—Frank Hopkins, a colored man, has entered a damage suit against Austin Perry and Flavins Brookes, proprietors of a barber shop, for refusing to shave him.
